

Protecting Students and the School Community After School Sports and Special Events Security

The New Jersey Department of Education Office of School Preparedness and Emergency Planning is hosting a training opportunity: Protecting Students and the School Community – After School Sports and Special Events Security. This session will focus on preventive security measures for after school and large venue events. Attendees will learn safety and security considerations for events which may be human induced, weather induced or technologically induced. Topics will also include physical security enhancements, crowd management, sheltering and evacuation concerns, culture and climate impact, and staff training.

This training is appropriate for school leaders, school safety specialists, security personnel, directors of buildings and grounds, athletic directors, and planners of theater and musical productions, etc.

Registration for this 2 ½ hour session is being offered regionally throughout January. Please register online for one of the following sessions:
