Port Authority Contributed Over $300k to the Fairfield County Revolving Loan Fund

The Lancaster Port Authority is contributing significant funding to help the Shumaker and all of downtown Lancaster’s development through the Fairfield County Revolving Loan Fund. The Port Authority Board of Directors recently approved $150,000 annually over two years to support small business financing.

This funding will be administered through the county’s Revolving Loan Fund, which will be available to businesses at the Shumaker or other businesses throughout downtown Lancaster. “This fund aims to support historic downtown Lancaster businesses and foster continued vibrancy and growth that developments such as the Shumaker bring to downtown Lancaster,” said Lancaster Port Authority Director Stephanie Bosco. “All prospective tenants in historic downtown Lancaster are encouraged to apply. Our downtown is the cornerstone of our community and we want to see it continue to thrive.”

This investment showcases the Port Authority's commitment to strengthening the local business community and supporting revitalization efforts in downtown Lancaster.
