APW HISTORY

In 1972, Women in Leadership funds enabled a representative group of non-white women (Asian, Black, Hispanic, and Native American) to convene for the first time at the national level. As a result of the meeting, the Third World Women's Coordinating Committee (TWWCC) of the former United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. was established to address the concerns of non-white women. The founding women of the TWWCC affirmed that as non-white women we had a special dignity and humanity that came from our diverse experiences, traditions, and cultures. Furthermore, we affirmed that, for the wholeness of the Presbyterian Church, it was important to share our identities by working as leaders, not only in our local congregations, but also in the wider church.

In 1973, Asian Presbyterian Women (APW) was organized under the umbrella of the TWWCC. Brought up with the Asian values of modesty, self-effacement and moderation, it was difficult for us to be assertive and to become visible. We realized that Asian women needed a forum in which to share frustrations and offer support. Subsequently, APW developed leadership-training seminars. The seminars provided Asian women with encouragement, skills and confidence to venture out and accept leadership responsibilities to the wider church.

We have come a long way in the past 32 years, both as individuals and as a community. We are no longer objects of mission. Asian women have become responsible and contributing partners in mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

APW MISSION

To equip Asian women with leadership skills and resources for the spreading of God's love throughout the world by:

- Promoting the development of Asian Women;
- Serving as a resource and support network for Asian Presbyterian women;
- Reaffirming the identity and self-worth of Asian women;
- Being an effective partner in Christian mission and outreach;
- Educating the church and the broader community about Asian American concerns and to enrich the cultural diversity of the church;
- Assuring full representation of Asian women within the governing bodies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); and
- Advocating for Asian women on justice issues such as racism, sexism, ageism, classism, etc.
