

How to dress for the programs:

Participants should dress for the out-of-doors. Shoes or sneakers (not sandals) are required footwear. Long pants are suggested to protect against poison ivy and insect bites. A hat is recommended.

All participants should bring rain gear, if the weather looks threatening. You may want to bring a small backpack.

WATER

All participants should bring water. Snacks are encouraged.

INSECT REPELLANT

Insects are attracted to strong smelling shampoo, soaps and sweet smelling snacks. Your first line of defense should be the elimination of all strong aromas. Some repellents are extremely toxic. These repellents on hands or skin can be harmful to water critters or other animals you may handle. People with insect repellent on will not be allowed to handle insects or be in the stream.

Daily field observations will be supplemented by hands-on activities such as making bird houses, bird feeders, keeping a field checklist, and more. Main topics will include bird anatomy; bird flight and migration; food and foraging; eggs, nests and breeding behavior; and conservation.
