American Dream By Noah Nawrocki

The American dream is the ability to make money and have freedom. America was built on dreams from the people that came here first to colonize America, to our founding fathers, and to many other influential people throughout US history. This dream has built America's very core. This dream is also why people immigrate to this country. This belief in the American dream pushes a lot of people to succeed in what they are trying to do. This dream for a better life is really only found in America. The opportunities you have here are endless. This allows people the freedom to choose who they want to be. These choices also allow you to have more freedom than in other countries. In other places in the world, you are just a slave to a larger corporation but not here.

Growing up in America is something that I am very thankful for. A lot of people that were born in America do not understand how lucky they are to grow up here. Even if you are not lucky enough to grow up with money in America, you still have the chance and opportunity to become wealthy while in other countries they do not have the same opportunities. Being able to have the freedom to do whatever I want or be whoever I want to be is what makes America the best. A lot of countries don't let you have the opportunities that you have here. Most countries don't let you start your own company and require you to work at a terrible job with bad pay. That is not the case in America, however. You may not get your dream job immediately here, but if you work hard enough, you can make a good life for yourself. This is why the US is great, because of the opportunities that you have. You can become a professional athlete, an entertainer, or just about anything else.

I think that some people achieve their dreams here, while others do not, because of the hard work they put in. America is not a place where you get to live a life stress-free and where you never have to work. If you want an easy life here, you have to work for it. This is the reason why everyone in America is not a billionaire. In many countries like China if you work hard you have to pay most of your money to the government. In America, the tax rate is about 30%. This means that you keep the majority of your money. The American economy also enables a wide array of jobs. There are thousands of jobs that you can get, so you can work at a job that you want. On top of this, America's constitution guarantees your rights. These rights protect you from the government and large companies. America is one of the best countries in the world for these reasons, and that is what I think the American dream is.
