

KeyCite Blue Flag – Appeal Notification

Petition for Certiorari Docketed by MARY ALEXANDRE v. NATIONAL UNION FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, PA, U.S.,
April 25, 2022

22 F.4th 261

United States Court of Appeals, First Circuit.

Mary ALEXANDRE, Plaintiff, Appellant,

v.

NATIONAL UNION FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, PA, Defendant, Appellee.

No. 21-1140

|

January 3, 2022

Synopsis

Background: Beneficiary of accidental death plan governed by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) brought action in Florida against insurer to challenge denial of claim on grounds that insured's death was a suicide and not accidental. Case was transferred. The United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, F. Dennis Saylor IV, Chief Judge, 514 F.Supp.3d 375, granted insurer's motion for summary judgment. Beneficiary appealed.

Holdings: The Court of Appeals, Katzmann, J., sitting by designation, held that:

[1] law of the Eleventh Circuit, as transferor court, did not apply, and

[2] substantial evidence supported denial of benefits.

Affirmed.

West Headnotes (18)

[1] Labor and Employment 🔑 Summary Plan Description

ERISA contemplates that a summary plan description (SPD) will be an employee's primary source of information regarding employment benefits. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 §§ 102, 104, 29 U.S.C.A. §§ 1022\(a\), 1024\(b\).

[2] Labor and Employment 🔑 Purpose

In enacting ERISA, Congress sought to implement unified system of federal rules to govern administration of employee benefit plans. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[3] Labor and Employment 🔑 Preemption States 🔑 Pensions and benefits

ERISA provides an exclusive federal cause of action for resolving suit by a beneficiary to recover benefits from a covered plan, with state common law causes of action preempted. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 514, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1144\(a\).

[4] Insurance 🔑 What constitutes accident Labor and Employment 🔑 Life and accidental death or dismemberment plans

For an insured's death to qualify as a covered accident under accidental death and dismemberment plan governed by ERISA, the beneficiary must demonstrate that the insured did not expect an injury similar in type or kind and that the suppositions underlying this expectation were reasonable from the perspective of the insured. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[5] Insurance 🔑 What constitutes accident Labor and Employment 🔑 Life and accidental death or dismemberment plans

If the evidence is insufficient to accurately determine the insured's subjective expectation, the fact-finder should then engage in an objective analysis of the insured's expectations in order to determine whether death was by accident under accidental death and dismemberment plan governed by ERISA. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[6] Federal Courts 🔑 Pension and benefit plans

Suits brought under ERISA are federal questions for purposes of federal court jurisdiction. 28 U.S.C.A. § 1331; Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[7] Federal Courts 🔑 Summary judgment

Court of Appeals reviews the district court's grant of summary judgment de novo.

[8] Federal Courts 🔑 Matters of Substance

ERISA plan participant did not waive argument that Eleventh Circuit law controlled after transfer of case from Florida even though she failed to use specific words “governing law” in claiming that Eleventh Circuit's presumption against suicide applied to claim under accidental death and dismemberment plan for her husband's death; district court would not decide case on the authority of the Eleventh Circuit's precedent without determining that it was the governing law, and district court understood participant's statements to comprise a governing law argument. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[9] Federal Courts 🔑 Effect of transfer and subsequent proceedings

Law of the Eleventh Circuit, as transferor court, did not apply to claim to recover under accidental death benefit plan governed by ERISA, and, thus, Eleventh Circuit's presumption against suicide did not apply. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[10] Courts 🔑 Previous Decisions as Controlling or as Precedents

Precedent is a bedrock to the system of adjudication.

[11] Courts 🔑 Number of judges concurring in opinion, and opinion by divided court

The “law of the circuit doctrine,” a subset of stare decisis, dictates that newly constituted panels in a multi-panel circuit court are bound by prior panel decisions that are closely on point.

[12] Courts 🔑 Number of judges concurring in opinion, and opinion by divided court

Absent special circumstances, such as a ruling of the Circuit sitting en banc, Court of Appeals panel is duty bound to follow prior holding.

[13] Labor and Employment 🔑 Arbitrary and capricious

Labor and Employment 🔑 Abuse of discretion

Adverse benefit determination under employee benefit plan governed by ERISA was reviewable under arbitrary, capricious, or abuse of discretion standard; insurer with fiduciary responsibility had right to interpret provisions of the plan, and plan made its decisions conclusive and binding. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[14] Labor and Employment 🔑 Arbitrary and capricious

Labor and Employment 🔑 Abuse of discretion

Under the arbitrary, capricious, or abuse of discretion standard, court will uphold denial of benefits under employee benefit plan governed by ERISA if decision was reasoned and supported by substantial evidence.

[15] Labor and Employment 🔑 Weight and Sufficiency

Evidence is substantial if it is reasonably sufficient to support a conclusion, and the existence of contrary evidence does not, in itself, make an ERISA plan administrator's decision arbitrary. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[16] Labor and Employment 🔑 Admissibility
Labor and Employment 🔑 Weight and Sufficiency

Contemporaneous and impartial documents by state officials in exercise of official duties were probative of cause of death of insured under accidental death plan governed by ERISA and provided substantial evidence that insured sprinted from 10th floor hotel room, hurtled himself over railing, landed on 9th floor ledge, rolled off ledge, and fell nine floors and that insured's death was not accidental, even though officials arrived after insured's death and insured's brother gave sworn declaration disputing death by suicide; medical examiner's summary captured accounts of two percipient witnesses, including an otherwise unaffiliated witness's statement that he heard brother yelling "no[,] no, keep still, don't do it," and death certificate listed death as a suicide. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 § 2, 29 U.S.C.A. § 1001 et seq.

[17] Federal Courts 🔑 Failure to mention or inadequacy of treatment of error in appellate briefs

Court of Appeals does not consider potentially applicable arguments that are not squarely presented in a party's appellate brief.

[18] Federal Courts 🔑 Failure to mention or inadequacy of treatment of error in appellate briefs

In the absence of exceptional circumstances, arguments presented for the first time in an appellant's reply brief are deemed waived.

*263 APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS, [Hon. F. Dennis Saylor, IV, U.S. District Judge]

Attorneys and Law Firms

Lawrence R. Metsch, Miami, FL, with whom Metschlaw, P.A., Amiel Z. Weinstock, and AZW Law, LCC were on brief, for appellant.

Lincoln A. Rose, Boston, MA, with whom Tamara Smith Holtslag, Boston, MA, and Peabody & Arnold LLP were on brief, for appellee.

Before Thompson and Kayatta, Circuit Judges, and Katzmann,* Judge.

Opinion

KATZMANN, Judge.

*264 This action arises under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA"), a federal statute designed to protect the interests of participants and their beneficiaries in employee benefit plans.<sup>1</sup> 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq. Plaintiff Mary Alexandre appeals a decision by the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts upholding defendant National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, PA's denial of accidental death insurance benefits to Alexandre following her husband's death on the grounds that he had committed suicide. Plaintiff asks that we remand to the district court with instructions to enter judgment in her favor. We are not persuaded by Plaintiff's arguments and we affirm the district court's decision.

I. Background

A. Facts

1. The Accidental Death and Dismemberment Insurance Plan

In May 2018, Plaintiff Mary Alexandre (“Alexandre”) was employed by PricewaterhouseCoopers, LLP (“PwC”) and resided in Boston. Through PwC, Alexandre enrolled in an accidental death and dismemberment insurance policy (“the AD&D Policy” or “the AD&D Plan”), an employer-sponsored welfare plan that afforded participants like Alexandre rights and protections under ERISA. Under said AD&D Policy, Alexandre's husband, Marzuq Muhammad (“Marzuq”),<sup>2</sup> was insured for a death benefit of $500,000 with Alexandre named as the beneficiary.

[1] While PwC served as the Sponsor and Administrator of Alexandre's AD&D Policy, PwC retained defendant National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, PA (“National Union”) to insure the Policy and to assume fiduciary responsibility for claim determinations. Concerning claims, the Summary Plan Description (“SPD”)<sup>3</sup> provided to Alexandre by PwC states, in relevant part:

Payment of Death Benefits

If you or a covered dependent die as the result of, and within 365 days after, an accident that occurs while AD&D coverage is in effect, the full amount of your or your covered dependent's AD&D coverage *265 will be paid to the designated beneficiary(ies) in a lump sum. (emphasis added). Neither the SPD nor the official Plan documents -- which articulate the complete details of and legally govern the AD&D Policy -- define the term “accident.” However, the AD&D Policy explicitly excludes from coverage “losses, disability, or death caused by” “suicide or any attempt at suicide or intentionally self-inflicted injury or any attempt at intentionally self-inflicted injury.” The AD&D Policy further states that National Union “has the right to interpret the provisions of th[e] Plan, and [that] its decisions are conclusive and binding,” but explains that unsatisfied participants “have the right to bring a civil action under Section 502(a) of ERISA within one year of the final adverse benefit determination.”

2. Marzuq Muhammad's Death

The circumstances that gave rise to Alexandre's claim for death benefits under the AD&D Policy are as follows: On May 20, 2018, Alexandre's husband, Marzuq, died after falling nine stories from a hotel balcony in Atlanta, Georgia. Marzuq and his brother, Mujihad, had traveled from Boston to Atlanta on May 18 for an event and were staying overnight in a tenth-floor hotel room at the Hyatt Regency Hotel at the time of Marzuq's death.

According to the Fulton County Medical Examiner's Investigative Summary -- which details the accounts of Mujihad and another witness in the immediate aftermath of Marzuq's death -- early on May 20, 2018, Marzuq “grabbed and squeezed” Mujihad's hand so that Mujihad “awakened to see [Marzuq] in a full sprint towards the door.” Immediately thereafter, Mujihad heard a “loud noise” and emerged from his hotel room to see Marzuq “kicking and wiggling” in a flower arrangement one story below on the ninth-floor ledge.

The Medical Examiner's report further details that Mujihad yelled to his brother “no[,] no, keep still,” and that the other witness -- who was in the hotel atrium below -- heard Mujihad yell to Marzuq “no[,] no, keep still, don't do it.” Marzuq then rolled off the ninth-floor ledge and fell to the atrium floor. Marzuq died on impact and his final Death Certificate listed his death as a suicide.

3. The Claim Denial

Following Marzuq's death, Alexandre submitted a claim under the AD&D Policy to National Union for accidental death benefits. On July 31, 2019, AIG Claims Inc. -- the Claims Administrator for National Union -- informed Alexandre by letter that because Marzuq's “death was not a result of bodily injury sustained as a direct result of an unintended, unanticipated accident but was the result of suicide or an intentionally self-inflicted [i]njury,” it was outside the scope of the AD&D Policy's coverage; Alexandre's claim for accidental death benefits was thus denied. According to the denial letter, AIG based this rejection upon Alexandre's claim form, Marzuq's Death Certificate, the autopsy report, the City of Atlanta Incident Report, and the Fulton County Medical Examiner's Investigative Summary.

Alexandre appealed the denial of benefits to AIG's Global Personal Accident & Health Division on September 4, 2019. As part of this appeal, Alexandre submitted a sworn declaration by Mujihad -- taken on September 3, 2019 -- disputing the determination that his brother had committed suicide. Mujihad's sworn declaration differed in certain respects from the account he gave to the authorities at the scene of Marzuq's death; specifically, in contrast to Mujihad's statement recorded in the Medical Examiner's report that

Marzuq exited the brothers' hotel room “in a full sprint” *266 immediately before landing in a flower arrangement on the ninth-floor ledge, Mujihad's September 2019 account stated that Marzuq “did not appear to be disturbed or alarmed” as he “went out the door.”

On May 4, 2020, AIG -- on behalf of National Union -- affirmed the denial of benefits to Alexandre by letter. In reaching this decision, AIG conveyed that it had considered Alexandre's appeal letter, Mujihad's September 2019 sworn declaration, case law submitted by outside counsel, and other materials, including those outlined in the July 31, 2019 denial letter. AIG further explained that in assessing the nature of Marzuq's death on appeal, it considered the contemporaneous investigative reports by the officials in Georgia to be “more credible than the singular, after-the-fact Declaration of Mujihad.”

B. Proceedings

On January 21, 2020, Alexandre filed suit against National Union under § 502(a)(1)(B)<sup>4</sup> of ERISA in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida seeking $500,000 in accidental death benefits provided for by the AD&D Policy. On February 19, 2020, National Union moved to transfer the case to the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts (“district court”) pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a),<sup>5</sup> which the Florida District Court granted on March 30, 2020.

Prior to the transfer, on March 17, 2020, Alexandre moved for summary judgment, invoking the presumptions against suicide and in favor of an accident adopted by the Eleventh Circuit in Horton v. Reliance Standard Life Insurance Co., 141 F.3d 1038 (11th Cir. 1998). Following the transfer, on May 19, 2020, National Union cross-moved for summary judgment on the grounds that Marzuq's death was not accidental, as informed by the First Circuit's analytical framework set forth in Wickman v. Northwestern National Insurance Co., 908 F.2d 1077 (1st Cir. 1990).

The district court granted National Union's motion for summary judgment, denied Alexandre's motion, and entered a final judgment in favor of National Union on January 20, 2021. In reaching this decision, the district court applied the First Circuit's Wickman framework to find that National Union did not abuse its discretion in determining that Marzuq's death was not an “accident,” and was, thus, excluded from coverage under the AD&D Policy. In dicta, the district court also considered the Eleventh Circuit's presumption against suicide, as set forth in Horton, but found it to be overcome.

Alexandre timely filed her notice of appeal on February 18, 2021.

C. Legal Framework

[2] [3] Before we dive into the parties' specific contentions on appeal, we note that “[t]he reader may understand our decision in this case more easily by keeping in mind the following legal background.” *267 Bos. Trading Grp., Inc. v. Burnazos, 835 F.2d 1504, 1507 (1st Cir. 1987). In enacting ERISA, Congress sought to implement “a unified system of federal rules to govern the administration of employee benefit plans.”<sup>6</sup> As such, Congress included a “virtually unique preemption provision,” Franchise Tax Bd. v. Constr. Laborers Vacation Tr., 463 U.S. 1, 24 n.26, 103 S.Ct. 2841, 77 L.Ed.2d 420 (1983), that states ERISA “supersede[s] any and all State laws insofar as they ... relate to any [covered] employee benefit plan,” 29 U.S.C. § 1144(a).<sup>7</sup> ERISA “provides an exclusive federal cause of action” for resolving “suit[s] by a beneficiary to recover benefits from a covered plan,” Metro. Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor, 481 U.S. 58, 62–63, 107 S.Ct. 1542, 95 L.Ed.2d 55 (1987), with state common law causes of action preempted, id. at 60, 107 S.Ct. 1542 (citing Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux, 481 U.S. 41, 107 S.Ct. 1549, 95 L.Ed.2d 39 (1987)).

Although ERISA is a “comprehensive and reticulated statute,” Nachman Corp. v. Pension Benefit Guar. Corp., 446 U.S. 359, 361, 100 S.Ct. 1723, 64 L.Ed.2d 354 (1980), since its inception, both Congress and the Supreme Court have recognized that courts must develop a federal common law to interpret and fill in the gaps of ERISA.<sup>8</sup> For example, in the Conference Report on ERISA, Senator Jacob Javits -- one of the sponsors of the draft legislation<sup>9</sup> -- asserted that “[i]t is ... intended that a body of Federal substantive law will be developed by the courts to deal with issues involving rights and obligations under private welfare and pension plans.” 120 Cong. Rec. S29,942 (1974) (statement of Sen. Jacob Javits). The Supreme Court has repeatedly invoked this statement by Senator Javits in support of courts' authority to develop federal common law under ERISA. See, e.g., Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. v. Bruch, 489 U.S. 101, 110, 109 S.Ct. 948, 103

L.Ed.2d 80 \(1989\) (“Given ... [ERISA’s] history, we have held that courts are to develop a ‘federal common law of rights and obligations under ERISA-regulated plans.’ ” (first quoting Pilot, 481 U.S. at 56, 107 S.Ct. 1549; then citing Franchise Tax Bd., 463 U.S. at 24 n.26, 103 S.Ct. 2841)). Courts contributing to this federal common law are guided -- and limited -- “by ERISA’s language, structure and purpose.”<sup>10</sup>

Of specific relevance to the case at bar, two areas in which courts have been active in developing federal common law under ERISA include: (1) the standard of review for plan administrator decisions; and (2) plan interpretation.

1. Standard of Review

ERISA is silent as to whether, upon review, courts should afford any deference *268 to a plan trustee’s benefit eligibility determination.<sup>11</sup> In Firestone, the Supreme Court declared that “a denial of benefits challenged under [29 U.S.C.] § 1132(a)(1)(B) is to be reviewed under a de novo standard unless the benefit plan gives the [plan] administrator or fiduciary discretionary authority to determine eligibility for benefits or to construe the terms of the plan.” 489 U.S. at 115, 109 S.Ct. 948. In the latter case, the First Circuit has determined that a reviewing court “must uphold the administrator’s determination unless it was ‘arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion.’ ” Stamp v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 531 F.3d 84, 87 (1st Cir. 2008) (quoting Wright v. R.R. Donnelley & Sons Co. Grp. Benefits Plan, 402 F.3d 67, 74 (1st Cir. 2005)). “Thus, the current standard of review -- de novo review unless the [benefit plan] explicitly gives authority to the plan administrator -- was imposed through the exercise of federal common law.”<sup>12</sup>

2. Plan Interpretation

The ERISA statute, likewise, does not set forth principles of interpretation to determine the meaning of undefined terms contained in ERISA-covered plans.<sup>13</sup> The federal courts have, therefore, undertaken to fashion a body of common-law principles on plan interpretation, with many adhering to common-sense canons of contract interpretation. See, e.g., Burnham v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 873 F.2d 486, 489 (1st Cir. 1989) (“[T]he ‘federal common law of rights and obligations’ ” under ERISA “must embody common-sense canons of contract interpretation.” (quoting Pilot, 481

U.S. at 56, 107 S.Ct. 1549)). Several courts -- this one included -- have further declared that state laws on policy interpretation are preempted under ERISA. See, e.g., Bellino v. Schlumberger Techs., Inc., 944 F.2d 26, 29 (1st Cir. 1991) (“The benefit provisions of an ERISA-regulated plan [must be] interpreted under principles of federal substantive law.”) (first citing Firestone, 489 U.S. at 110, 109 S.Ct. 948; then citing Burnham, 873 F.2d at 489)); see also Sampson v. Mut. Benefit Life Ins. Co., 863 F.2d 108, 109–10 (1st Cir. 1988) (rejecting the argument “that the substantive law of Massachusetts -- rather than the body of federal common law that has grown up around ERISA -- should govern the interpretation of the ... policy” at issue).

As a specific -- and pertinent -- example concerning plan interpretation, various circuits have added to the federal common law on ERISA by formulating approaches for construing the term “accident” when left otherwise undefined in AD&D insurance policies.

[4] [5] For example, in the First Circuit, our precedent in Wickman provides the analytical framework for interpreting the term “accident.” 908 F.2d at 1088. Under Wickman, for an insured’s death to qualify as a covered “accident,” “the beneficiary must demonstrate that the insured did not expect an injury similar in type or kind and that the suppositions underlying this expectation were reasonable,” from the perspective of the insured. Wightman v. Securian Life Ins. Co., 453 F. Supp. 3d 460, 467 (D. Mass. 2020) (discussing Wickman, 908 F.2d at 1088 and citing McGillivray v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am., 519 F. Supp. 2d 157, 163 (D. Mass. 2007)). If “the evidence [is] insufficient to accurately determine the insured’s subjective expectation, the fact-finder should then engage in an *269 objective analysis of the insured’s expectations.” Wickman, 908 F.2d at 1088.

In the Eleventh Circuit, the aforementioned Horton case supplies a different approach for construing the term “accident” in ERISA-covered policies. 141 F.3d at 1040. There, the Eleventh Circuit announced that “when the evidence is inconclusive as to whether [a] deceased died by accidental or intentional means,” it is “appropriate” to use “the legal presumptions against suicide and in favor of accidental death” to determine insurance benefit eligibility. Id. The court affirmed that -- at least in the Eleventh Circuit -- “[t]hese presumptions are properly part of the pertinent federal common law” governing ERISA. Id.

With this legal background in mind, we now proceed to consider the parties' specific issues on appeal.

II. DISCUSSION

[6] [7] Suits brought under ERISA are federal questions for the purposes of federal court jurisdiction, see Taylor, 481 U.S. at 65–66, 107 S.Ct. 1542 (discussing 29 U.S.C. § 1132(a)(1) (B)); thus, this case is properly in federal court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331.<sup>14</sup> We have appellate jurisdiction to review the district court's final decision pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1291.<sup>15</sup> We review the district court's grant of summary judgment de novo. Wright, 402 F.3d at 73-74 (citing Boardman v. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am., 337 F.3d 9, 15 (1st Cir. 2003)).

A. Decisional Law

Alexandre first contends that the district court erred when, following the transfer of the action from the Southern District of Florida, it granted summary judgment to National Union using the First Circuit's Wickman framework, rather than granting summary judgment to Alexandre on the basis of the Eleventh Circuit's presumption against suicide and in favor of an accident, as articulated in Horton. Alexandre further argues that the First Circuit decision upon which the district court relied in applying the transferee court's law as opposed to that of the transferor court -- namely, AER Advisors, Inc. v. Fidelity Brokerage Services, LLC, 921 F.3d 282 (1st Cir. 2019) -- contravenes Supreme Court guidance and should be overruled.<sup>16</sup>

By contrast, National Union contends as a threshold matter that Alexandre's argument that Eleventh Circuit precedent controls is waived because “Alexandre did not make this ‘governing law’ argument below”; in the alternative, National Union argues that the First Circuit's decision in AER Advisors properly controls and, thereby, dictates that the law of the First Circuit -- as the transferee court considering a federal question -- applies.

1. Waiver

[8] We find National Union's first contention -- that Alexandre did not preserve *270 her governing law argument -- to be overly formalistic. After the case was transferred from the Florida District Court to the Massachusetts District Court, Alexandre continued to argue that the Eleventh Circuit's presumption against suicide, as elucidated in Horton, should apply. For example, in Alexandre's Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Defendant's Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment submitted to the district court, Alexandre contested National Union's motion for dismissal predicated on our Wickman decision, asserting:

Because the facts underlying the Wickman decision are materially distinguishable from the facts underlying this case, [National Union's] cross-motion for summary judgment should be denied and [Alexandre's motion for summary judgment] should be granted on the authority of the decision in Horton v. Reliance Standard Life Insurance Company, 141 F.3d 1038 (11th Cir. 1998).

While Alexandre's Opposition Memorandum to the district court may not have included the specific words “governing law,” implicit in her argument is the question of which circuit's case law applies following the transfer of a case under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a); this is so because a federal court in Massachusetts would not decide a case “on the authority of” the Eleventh Circuit's precedent without determining that it was the governing law.

Moreover, the district court understood Alexandre's statements to comprise a governing law argument and, thus, responded to it as such. For example, in its Memorandum and Order on Cross-Motions for Summary Judgment, the district court declared:

As an initial matter, Eleventh Circuit precedents are not binding on the Court. And that remains true here even though the case was originally filed in the Southern District of Florida. The First Circuit recently explained that after a federal-question case is transferred pursuant to § 1404(a), the transferee court should apply its own circuit's precedents concerning the meaning of federal law.

Because we agree with the district court's assessment that Alexandre raised a governing law argument below, we find no waiver. As such, we proceed to consider and reject Alexandre's governing law argument on the merits.

2. Merits

[9] [10] [11] [12] Alexandre's argument that the law of the Eleventh Circuit -- as the transferor court -- applies is foreclosed by our decision in AER Advisors, supra p. 269.

Precedent is a bedrock to our system of adjudication. See United States v. Barbosa, 896 F.3d 60, 74 (1st Cir. 2018). Our “ ‘law of the circuit’ ” doctrine, “a subset of stare decisis,” dictates that “newly constituted panels in a multi-panel circuit court are bound by prior panel decisions that are closely on point.” San Juan Cable LLC v. P.R. Tel. Co., Inc., 612 F.3d 25, 33 (1st Cir. 2010) (emphasis added) (citing United States v. Rodríguez-Vélez, 597 F.3d 32, 46 (1st Cir. 2010) and United States v. Wogan, 938 F.2d 1446, 1449 (1st Cir. 1991)). “Although this rule is not ‘immutable,’ the exceptions are extremely narrow and their incidence is hen’s-teeth-rare.” Id. (quoting Carpenters Local Union No. 26 v. U.S. Fid. & Guar. Co., 215 F.3d 136, 142 (1st Cir. 2000)). “Absent special circumstances,” -- such as a ruling of the Circuit sitting en banc -- “we are duty bound to follow our prior holding.” United States v. Hudson, 823 F.3d 11, 15 (1st Cir. 2016) (citing United States v. Chhien, 266 F.3d 1, 11 (1st Cir. 2001) (listing exceptions)). Quite apart from the fact that a single panel is generally not authorized to overrule a prior panel’s decision, Alexandre offers no new or previously unaddressed reason to deviate from our recent decision *271 in AER Advisors; we decline her invitation to overrule that precedent and to apply the Eleventh Circuit’s Horton presumption to her claim.

Alexandre acknowledges that her claim comprises a federal question for the purposes of federal court jurisdiction. In AER Advisors, we explained that “when one district court transfers a case to another, the norm is that the transferee court applies its own Circuit’s cases on the meaning of federal law.” 921 F.3d at 288 (emphasis added).<sup>17</sup> Nevertheless, Alexandre invokes the Supreme Court cases Van Dusen v. Barrack, 376 U.S. 612, 84 S.Ct. 805, 11 L.Ed.2d 945 (1964) and Ferens v. John Deere Co., 494 U.S. 516, 110 S.Ct. 1274, 108 L.Ed.2d 443 (1990) -- which held that in diversity cases<sup>18</sup> the transferee courts must apply the substantive law of the transferor courts -- to contend that “[t]he inference to be drawn from the foregoing is ineluctable: in any civil action, whether based upon the parties’ diverse citizenship or a federal question, following a transfer under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a), the transferee court is obligated to apply the transferor court’s governing law.” (emphasis added).

However, we considered and rejected this exact argument in AER Advisors, explaining that “Van Dusen and Ferens are diversity cases. And with diversity cases, federalism commands that federal judges apply state substantive law exactly as a state court would.” 921 F.3d at 289 (citing Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64, 78, 58 S.Ct. 817, 82 L.Ed.

1188 (1938)). Whereas with “ ‘the adjudication of federal claims,’ federal courts ordinarily ‘comprise a single system in which each tribunal endeavors to apply a single body of law,’ and if different circuits view federal law differently, then the Supreme Court can restore ‘uniformity.’ ” Id. at 288 (quoting In re Korean Air Lines Disaster of Sept. 1, 1983, 829 F.2d 1171, 1175, 1176 (D.C. Cir. 1987), aff’d on other grounds sub nom. Chan v. Korean Air Lines, Ltd., 490 U.S. 122, 109 S.Ct. 1676, 104 L.Ed.2d 113 (1989)). Thus, we declared in AER Advisors that “ ‘[n]othing’ in Van Dusen or [Ferens] compels one federal court to apply another’s interpretation of federal law after a case’s transfer.” Id. at 290 (emphasis in original).<sup>19</sup>

*272 In sum, Alexandre has supplied no novel arguments that compel us to overturn our decision in AER Advisors. Adhering to our precedent, we find that the district court did not err in ruling that the decisional law of the First Circuit -- namely, the Wickman framework -- rather than the decisional law of the Eleventh Circuit -- namely, the Horton presumption against suicide -- governs Alexandre’s federal cause of action under ERISA.

B. Adverse Benefit Determination

Even though the district court held that courts within the First Circuit are not obligated to apply the Eleventh Circuit’s presumption against suicide, it nevertheless explained in dicta that even considering Horton’s presumption, National Union’s denial of benefits was not arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion given the “substantial evidence” indicating that Marzuq’s death was intentional. On appeal, Alexandre contests this dicta, while National Union maintains that its decision to deny accidental death benefits to Alexandre was the correct one. Notably, Alexandre does not offer any argument that she can prevail under the Wickman framework, even though she recognizes that binding precedent likely requires us to adhere to Wickman instead of Horton. Applying the Wickman framework, we affirm.

[13] We review the district court’s grant of summary judgment de novo, Wright, 402 F.3d at 73-74; however, because the AD&D Plan at issue stated that National Union “has the right to interpret the provisions of th[e] Plan, and [that] its decisions are conclusive and binding,” we must review National Union’s adverse benefit determination under the aforementioned arbitrary, capricious, or abuse of discretion standard. Supra p. 267–68. On appeal, Alexandre challenges neither the district court’s conclusion that the AD&D Plan afforded National Union discretion nor the corresponding consequence that courts must employ the arbitrary, capricious, or abuse of discretion standard in reviewing National Union's adverse benefit determination. Because these issues are not before the court, we do not address them further.

[14] [15] As such, although we look at the district court's decision with fresh eyes, under the arbitrary, capricious, or abuse of discretion standard, we will “uphold [National Union's] denial of benefits if [its] decision was ‘reasoned and supported by substantial evidence,’ ” Stamp, 531 F.3d at 87 (quoting Wright, 402 F.3d at 74). “Evidence is substantial if it is reasonably sufficient to support a conclusion, and the existence of contrary evidence does not, in itself, make the administrator's decision arbitrary.” Gannon v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 360 F.3d 211, 213 (1st Cir. 2004).

While Wickman is not cited by name, the analysis in AIG's<sup>20</sup> ERISA Appeal Determination submitted to Alexandre by letter on May 4, 2020 conforms with Wickman's subjective/objective test for assessing accidents. As set out above, supra p. 268, where the term “accident” is otherwise undefined in an AD&D Policy, to find that an insured's death is covered, “the beneficiary must demonstrate that the insured [reasonably] did not expect an injury similar in type or kind” to the one that occurred, Wightman, 453 F. Supp. 3d at 467 (emphasis added) (discussing *273 Wickman, 908 F.2d at 1088 and citing McGillivray, 519 F. Supp. 2d at 163); where the insured's subjective expectations are unknowable, “an objective analysis of the insured's expectations” is required, Wickman, 908 F.2d at 1088. Consistent with this directive, AIG reasoned that “Marzuq's volitional and purposeful conduct of sprinting out of the hotel room and hurtling himself over the 10th floor railing of a high-rise hotel is dangerous conduct” and “no reasonable person would believe that [doing as such] would not result in bodily harm or death, even if Marzuq didn't intend to kill himself.” Thus, AIG -- and thereby, National Union -- concluded that Marzuq's death did not result from an “accident” on the basis of the kind of subjective/objective analysis required by Wickman.

[16] [17] Next, we ask whether substantial evidence in the record supports AIG's application of the Wickman framework. Inexplicably, Alexandre's counsel does not challenge AIG's finding that Marzuq “hurtl[ed] himself over the 10th floor railing.” Although it appears that nothing more than speculation supports this claim -- as the evidence establishes only that Marzuq ran out of his hotel room and was then found one floor below the railing -- “[w]e [do] not consider potentially applicable arguments that are not squarely presented in a party's appellate brief,” Baybank-Middlesex v. Ralar Distribs., Inc., 69 F.3d 1200, 1203 n.5 (1st Cir. 1995) (citing United States v. Zannino, 895 F.2d 1, 17 (1st Cir. 1990)); see also Sanchez v. United States, 740 F.3d 47, 48–49, 54–55 (1st Cir. 2014) (“affirm[ing] the district court's decision that it had no choice but to dismiss” where counsel failed to timely lodge plaintiff's claims). On appeal, Alexandre's sole contention -- and thus, the only argument that we address -- is that substantial evidence does not support the denial of benefits to Alexandre because AIG relied on reports produced by state personnel who arrived at the hotel after Marzuq's death rather than on the sworn declaration produced by Mujihad in September 2019.

We cannot conclude -- at least not on the basis argued by Alexandre -- that National Union's adverse benefit determination was arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion. In rendering its decision, AIG considered the Fulton County Medical Examiner's Investigative Summary -- which captured the accounts of two percipient witnesses, including an otherwise unaffiliated witness's statement that he heard Mujihad yelling “no[,] no, keep still, don't do it” immediately prior to Marzuq's fall -- as well as Marzuq's final Death Certificate listing his cause of death as a suicide, among other documents. While Alexandre questions whether opinions and reports produced by state personnel who arrived on the scene after Marzuq's death should be considered “evidence,” we agree with the district court that these “contemporaneous and impartial” documents “authored by ... state official[s] in the exercise of [their] official duties” are probative.

[18] Moreover, we agree with the district court that National Union reasonably engaged with Alexandre's contrary evidence -- namely, Mujihad's later sworn declaration -- and “reasonably rejected [it] as less credible than the contemporaneous, neutral evidence from the state.” “[T]he existence of contrary evidence does not, in itself, make the administrator's decision arbitrary.” Gannon, 360 F.3d at 213. As such, we cannot -- on the basis raised by Alexandre -- conclude that National Union's determination that Marzuq's death was excluded from coverage because it was not accidental was arbitrary, capricious, or *274 an abuse of discretion.<sup>21,22</sup>

III. Conclusion

Though we decline to disturb National Union's adverse benefit determination, our decision is not intended to lessen the tragedy of Marzuq's death or to minimize the loss of those who loved him. We acknowledge that Marzuq's family and friends may still have questions about the circumstances attending his end of life. Our determination simply means that, in light of the arguments raised on appeal and the standard that governs our review, we cannot conclude that National Union's denial of AD&D benefits was arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion.

For the reasons stated above, the judgment in favor of National Union is affirmed.

All Citations

22 F.4th 261

Footnotes

* Of the United States Court of International Trade, sitting by designation.

1 ERISA applies to:

any employee benefit plan if it is established or maintained --

(1) by any employer engaged in commerce or actively affecting commerce; or

(2) by any employee organization or organizations representing employees engaged in commerce or in any industry or activity affecting commerce; or

(3) both.

Wickman v. Nw. Nat'l Ins. Co., 908 F.2d 1077, 1082 (1st Cir. 1990) (citing 29 U.S.C. § 1003(a)).

2 We note that because our factual recitation requires discussion of both the deceased, Marzuq Muhammad, as well as his brother, Mujihad Muhammad, for clarity, we will refer to them by their first names throughout.

3 The ERISA statute requires that plan participants receive a Summary Plan Description, see 29 U.S.C. § 1024(b), "written in a manner calculated to be understood by the average plan participant," 29 U.S.C. § 1022(a). ERISA contemplates that the SPD will be an employee's primary source of information regarding employment benefits. Sidou v. Unumprovident Corp., 245 F. Supp. 2d 207, 218 (D. Me. 2003) ("[T]he SPD 'is an employee's primary source of information regarding employment benefits.' " (quoting Mario v. P & C Food Mkts., Inc., 313 F.3d 758, 764 (2d Cir. 2002))).

4 ERISA § 502, codified at 29 U.S.C. § 1132(a)(1)(B), provides in relevant part:

(a) Persons empowered to bring civil action

A civil action may be brought -

(1) by a participant or beneficiary -

...

(B) to recover benefits due to him under the terms of his plan, to enforce his rights under the terms of the plan, or to clarify his rights to future benefits under the terms of the plan;

5 28 U.S.C. § 1404 provides, in relevant part:

(a) For the convenience of parties and witnesses, in the interest of justice, a district court may transfer any civil action to any other district or division where it might have been brought or to any district or division to which all parties have consented.

- 6 Joshua A.T. Fairfield, Comment, ERISA Preemption and the Case for a Federal Common Law of Agency Governing Employer-Administrators, 68 U. Chi. L. Rev. 223, 225 (2001).
- 7 Although not before the court in this case, for the sake of completeness, we note that the statute “saves” certain state-law rules -- such as laws regulating insurance -- from preemption as part of ERISA’s “Savings Clause.” 29 U.S.C. § 1144(b)(2)(A).
- 8 “The federal common law is generally defined as ‘any rule of federal law created by a court when the substance of that rule is not clearly suggested by federal enactment.’ ” George Lee Flint, Jr., ERISA: Reformulating the Federal Common Law for Plan Interpretation, 32 San Diego L. Rev. 955, 967 (1995) (quoting George D. Brown, Federal Common Law and the Role of the Federal Courts in Private Law Adjudication--A \(New\) Erie Problem?, 12 Pace L. Rev. 229, 230 (1992)).
- 9 See Jeffrey A. Brauch, The Federal Common Law of ERISA, 21 Harv. J.L. & Pub. Pol’y 541, 550 (1998).
- 10 See Joseph J. Torres, et al., Jenner & Block, Practice Series: ERISA Litigation Handbook, 231 (6th ed. 2021).
- 11 Brauch, supra note 9, at 572.
- 12 Brauch, supra note 9, at 573 (emphasis added).
- 13 Brauch, supra note 9, at 573.
- 14 28 U.S.C. § 1331 establishes federal-question jurisdiction:
- The district courts shall have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.
- 15 28 U.S.C. § 1291 provides in pertinent part:
- The courts of appeals (other than the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit) shall have jurisdiction of appeals from all final decisions of the district courts of the United States....
- 16 To clear up any confusion that may be caused by the “legalese,” here, the Florida federal court was the “transferor court” and the Massachusetts federal court was the “transferee court.”
- 17 As we noted in AER Advisors, this principle has been endorsed by at least the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, and Eleventh Circuits. See id. at 288 n.5 (collecting cases).
- 18 “Diversity cases” are those cases over which federal courts can assert jurisdiction because the parties are citizens of different states and the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000. McKenna v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 693 F.3d 207, 211–12 (1st Cir. 2012) (citing 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a)).
- 19 For similar reasons, Alexandre’s reliance on Viernow v. Euripides Development Corp., 157 F.3d 785 (10th Cir. 1998) -- a case we did not earlier consider in AER Advisors -- is unavailing, as it is a non-binding diversity case that concerned only state law claims.

Nevertheless, Alexandre cites Viernow as part of her argument that 28 U.S.C. § 1631 -- transfer to cure want of jurisdiction -- comprises the exclusive exception to Alexandre’s asserted general principle that in any civil action, the transferee court must apply the transferor court’s governing law following a § 1404(a) transfer. The problem for Alexandre is that Viernow does not state such a rule. And moreover, dicta in at least one other Tenth Circuit opinion indicates that our sister circuit, likewise, accepts the general approach that we adopted in AER Advisors for federal-question cases. See Olcott v. Del. Flood Co., 76 F.3d 1538, 1546 (10th Cir. 1996) (agreeing with a Seventh Circuit case explaining “that a transferee court normally should use its own best judgment about the meaning of federal law when evaluating a federal claim”) (quoting Eckstein v. Balcor Film Invs., 8 F.3d 1121, 1126 (7th Cir. 1993)).

In accordance with our aforementioned “law of the circuit” doctrine, Alexandre would have needed to furnish binding precedent to induce us to overturn AER Advisors. Here, Alexandre has supplied no caselaw -- neither persuasive, nor binding -- to support her construction of 28 U.S.C. § 1631 as the exclusive basis for a transferee court to apply its own circuit's cases following a § 1404\(a\) transfer. As such, we could not overturn AER Advisors on these grounds.

20 Recall that AIG serves as the Claims Administrator for National Union.

21 National Union also maintains that Alexandre's claim is further precluded from coverage by the AD&D Plan's intentional self-inflicted injury exclusion. Because Alexandre has not argued grounds sufficient to disturb National Union's conclusion that Marzuq's death was excluded from coverage because it was not accidental, we need not reach this additional contention.

22 In her reply brief as well as in a Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 28\(j\) letter, Alexandre submitted the cases Krantz v. John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., 335 Mass. 703, 141 N.E.2d 719 (1957) and Bohaker v. Travelers' Insurance Co., 215 Mass. 32, 102 N.E. 342 (1913), to argue for the first time that Massachusetts also employs a presumption against suicide.

As an initial matter, "[b]lack-letter law holds that, in the absence of exceptional circumstances, arguments presented for the first time in an appellant's reply brief are deemed waived." Álamo-Hornedo v. Puig, 745 F.3d 578, 582 (1st Cir. 2014). The same is true for Rule 28\(j\) letters. See, e.g., Rosa-Rivera v. Dorado Health, Inc., 787 F.3d 614, 617 (1st Cir. 2015) ("Not only is it improper to advance new arguments in a 28(j) letter, but it is far too late in the game." (internal citation omitted)). As Alexandre does not advance any "exceptional circumstances" to justify the delay, we find her argument waived.

But waiver aside, Alexandre's argument is also incomplete because each of her submitted cases predates ERISA. As such, even if Massachusetts state law has embraced a presumption against suicide -- a point on which we take no position at this time -- Alexandre has not argued either (1) that any such presumption "regulates insurance" so as to fall within ERISA's Savings Clause, see UNUM Life Ins. Co. of Am. v. Ward, 526 U.S. 358, 367–68, 119 S.Ct. 1380, 143 L.Ed.2d 462 (1999); or (2) that we have incorporated that presumption into the First Circuit's federal common law on ERISA, see Sampson, 863 F.2d at 109–10 (rejecting the argument that "the substantive law of Massachusetts -- rather than the body of federal common law that has grown up around ERISA -- should govern the interpretation of the ... policy" at issue).

In fact, Alexandre appears to concede both of these points, as her reply brief states:

Had Ms. Alexandre, without the involvement of her employer, purchased an accidental death benefits insurance policy on her husband's life from [National Union], she would have gone into battle with [National Union] armed with the presumption against her husband's suicide. However, because her employer had procured the [National Union] accidental death benefits policy, ... Ms. Alexandre went into battle with [National Union] unarmed with the presumption against her husband's suicide.

(emphasis in original). In essence, Alexandre is saying that if this were not an ERISA case, she would get the benefit of the presumption against suicide under Massachusetts state law; but because this is an ERISA case -- and thus ERISA's preemption provisions apply -- she does not get the benefit of such a state-law presumption. While we take no view on whether Alexandre is correct that federal common law, not state law, applies in this circumstance, we conclude that Alexandre's statement is, at the very least, a concession that we should apply federal common law, not state law, to her case.

Table of Authorities (43)

| Treatment          | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Type | Depth | Quoted | Page Number |
|--------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|-------|--------|-------------|
| Examined           | 1. AER Advisors, Inc. v. Fidelity Brokerage Services, LLC 921 F.3d 282, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2019 SECURITIES REGULATION — Brokers and Dealers. Brokerage firm was entitled to immunity under Bank Secrecy Act from any tort liability arising from its filing of false suspicious... | Case |       |        | 269+        |
| Cited              | 2. Alamo-Hornedo v. Puig 745 F.3d 578, 1st Cir.(Puerto Rico), 2014 CIVIL RIGHTS - Limitations. Employee's prior suit in Puerto Rico court did not toll limitations period applicable to § 1983 action.                                                                           | Case |       |        | 274         |
| Cited              |  3. Baybank-Middlesex v. Ralar Distributors, Inc. 69 F.3d 1200, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1995 Chapter 11 debtors objected to proof of claim filed by creditor for superpriority administrative expense treatment based on alleged failure of adequate protection provided by...          | Case |       |        | 273         |
| Cited              |  4. Bellino v. Schlumberger Technologies, Inc. 944 F.2d 26, 1st Cir.(Me.), 1991 Employees who were "transferred" to second employer sued to recover severance benefits from first employer. The United States District Court for the District of Maine, 753...                   | Case |       |        | 268         |
| Mentioned          |  5. Boardman v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America 337 F.3d 9, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2003 LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. Denial of benefits to participant diagnosed with Epstein Barr viral disease was not arbitrary and capricious.                                             | Case |       |        | 269         |
| Declined to Follow |  6. Bohaker v. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. 102 N.E. 342, Mass., 1913 Exceptions from Superior Court, Suffolk County; Nathan D. Pratt, Judge. Action by Annie R. Bohaker against the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. There was a verdict...            | Case |       |        | 274         |
| Cited              |  7. Boston Trading Group, Inc. v. Burnazos 835 F.2d 1504, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1987 Receiver of commodity investment corporations brought action against former owner to recover alleged fraudulent conveyances. The United States District Court for the District of...             | Case |       |        | 266         |

| Treatment          | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Type | Depth                                                                                 | Quoted                                                                                | Page Number |
|--------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Cited              |  8. Burnham v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America 873 F.2d 486, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1989 Administratrix of employee's estate brought action against insurer to recover benefits under Employee Retirement Income Security Act-regulated group life policy. The United...                                                   | Case |    |    | 268+        |
| Mentioned          |  9. Carpenters Local Union No. 26 v. U.S. Fidelity &amp; Guar. Co. 215 F.3d 136, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2000 LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. Statute requiring contractors to secure payment for health plans was not preempted by ERISA.                                                                              | Case |    |                                                                                       | 270         |
| Cited              |  10. Eckstein v. Balcor Film Investors 8 F.3d 1121, 7th Cir.(Wis.), 1993 Investors brought § 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 action, alleging that film distribution company fraudulently portrayed investment as safe and conservative. The United States District...                                                            | Case |    |                                                                                       | 271         |
| Mentioned          |  11. Erie R. Co. v. Tompkins 58 S.Ct. 817, U.S.N.Y., 1938 On Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Action by Harry J. Tompkins against the Erie Railroad Company to recover for personal injuries...                                                                        | Case |    |                                                                                       | 271         |
| Declined to Extend |  12. Ferens v. John Deere Co. 110 S.Ct. 1274, U.S.Pa., 1990 Farmer injured in combine accident and his wife brought federal diversity action in Mississippi against manufacturer of combine alleging negligence and strict liability. After...                                                                       | Case |  |                                                                                       | 271+        |
| Discussed          |  13. Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. v. Bruch 109 S.Ct. 948, U.S.Pa., 1989 Former employees who were terminated by employer and hired by successor corporation immediately upon sale of employer's plant brought action for alleged violations of Employee...                                                          | Case |  |  | 267+        |
| Cited              |  14. Franchise Tax Bd. of State of Cal. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust for Southern California 103 S.Ct. 2841, U.S.Cal., 1983 The California Franchise Tax Board levied against money held in trust for three union members by welfare benefit trust seeking to collect unpaid personal income tax. When... | Case |  |                                                                                       | 267+        |

| Treatment          | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Type | Depth                                                                                 | Quoted                                                                                | Page Number |
|--------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Cited              |  15. Gannon v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.360 F.3d 211, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2004LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans.Benefit plan's disability insurer reasonably found non-disability despite treating physicians' opinions.                                      | Case |    |    | 272+        |
| Declined to Follow |  16. Horton v. Reliance Standard Life Ins. Co.141 F.3d 1038, 11th Cir.(Fla.), 1998Beneficiary brought Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) action against insurers, seeking benefits under policies indemnifying the life of her husband. The United... | Case |    |    | 266+        |
| Mentioned          |  17. In re Korean Air Lines Disaster of Sept. 1, 1983829 F.2d 1171, D.C.Cir., 1987Actions were brought seeking damages sustained when Korean airliner was shot down by Soviets over Sea of Japan. Plaintiffs sought determination that Warsaw Convention's...      | Case |    |                                                                                       | 271         |
| Declined to Follow |  18. Krantz v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co.141 N.E.2d 719, Mass., 1957Action on contract to recover on life policy for double indemnity for death of insured by drowning wherein certified copy of record of death stated that death was due to suicide. ...    | Case |    |                                                                                       | 274         |
| Cited              |  19. Mario v. P &amp; C Food Markets, Inc.313 F.3d 758, 2nd Cir.(N.Y.), 2002LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans.Gender reassignment surgeries were not "medically necessary" under ERISA health insurance plan.                                             | Case |  |  | 265         |
| Mentioned          | 20. McGillivray v. Life Ins. Co. of North America519 F.Supp.2d 157, D.Mass., 2007LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. A plan fiduciary was not arbitrary and capricious in denying accidental death benefits for a death of an intoxicated driver.                                                                                                 | Case |  |                                                                                       | 268+        |
| Cited              |  21. McKenna v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.693 F.3d 207, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2012REAL PROPERTY - Mortgages and Deeds of Trust.Mortgagor's right to rescind mortgage transaction under MCCCCDA was not extended from three days to four years.                        | Case |  |                                                                                       | 271         |

| Treatment | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Type | Depth                                                                                 | Quoted                                                                                | Page Number |
|-----------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Discussed |  22. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor107 S.Ct. 1542, U.S.Mich., 1987Former employee brought suit against former employer and its insurer alleging breach of contract, retaliatory discharge and wrongful termination of disability benefits. The...                                  | Case |    |    | 267+        |
| Cited     |  23. Nachman Corp. v. Pension Ben. Guaranty Corp.100 S.Ct. 1723, U.S.Ill., 1980Employer filed suit against the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, seeking a declaration of nonliability under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 for any...                          | Case |    |                                                                                       | 267         |
| Cited     |  24. Olcott v. Delaware Flood Co.76 F.3d 1538, 10th Cir.(Okla.), 1996Investor in oil drilling and exploration limited partnerships brought Rule 10b-5 claims alleging fraud. The United States District Court for the District of New Jersey...                                          | Case |    |    | 271         |
| Cited     |  25. Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux107 S.Ct. 1549, U.S.Miss., 1987Employee brought common-law breach of contract and tort claims against insurance company that issued his employer's group insurance policy. The United States District Court for...                                    | Case |    |    | 267+        |
| Cited     | 26. Rosa-Rivera v. Dorado Health, Inc.787 F.3d 614, 1st Cir.(Puerto Rico), 2015HEALTH - Malpractice. Trial court did not abuse its discretion by ruling that plaintiffs' attorney could not ask nurse leading questions in medical malpractice action.                                                                                                                    | Case |  |                                                                                       | 274         |
| Cited     |  27. Sampson v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co.863 F.2d 108, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1988Injured employee brought suit against disability insurance insurer to recover monies withheld to offset workers' compensation loss-of-time payments. The United States District...                         | Case |  |  | 268+        |
| Cited     |  28. San Juan Cable LLC v. Puerto Rico Telephone Co., Inc.612 F.3d 25, 1st Cir.(Puerto Rico), 2010ENERGY AND UTILITIES - Telecommunications. Cable franchisee lacked standing to bring private action under Cable Act to enjoin unfranchised applicant's construction of cable system. | Case |  |  | 270+        |

| Treatment | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Type | Depth                                                                                 | Quoted                                                                                | Page Number |
|-----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Cited     |  29. Sanchez v. U.S.740 F.3d 47, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2014HEALTH - Limitations. Factual basis did not exist for equitable tolling of limitations period for medical malpractice claim under FTCA.                                                | Case |    |    | 273         |
| Cited     | 30. Sidou v. Unumprovident Corp.245 F.Supp.2d 207, D.Me., 2003LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. Personal notes of ERISA claimant's psychologist could be included as part of administrative record.                                                                                                                       | Case |    |                                                                                       | 265         |
| Cited     |  31. Stamp v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.531 F.3d 84, 1st Cir.(R.I.), 2008LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. It was not arbitrary and capricious to find that a death while driving while intoxicated was not the result of an accident.   | Case |    |    | 268+        |
| Cited     |  32. U.S. v. Chhien266 F.3d 1, 1st Cir.(N.H.), 2001CRIMINAL JUSTICE - Searches and Seizures. Question about bulge felt by officer during pat-down search was within scope of search.                                                         | Case |    |                                                                                       | 270         |
| Cited     |  33. U.S. v. Hudson823 F.3d 11, 1st Cir.(Me.), 2016CRIMINAL JUSTICE - Habitual Offenders. Error in calculating defendant's Guidelines sentencing range under residual clause of career offender guideline, which was unconstitutionally... | Case |  |  | 270         |
| Mentioned | 34. U.S. v. Rodriguez-Velez597 F.3d 32, 1st Cir.(Puerto Rico), 2010CRIMINAL JUSTICE - Arguments and Opening Statement. Any violation of Fifth Amendment by comment that prosecution evidence was "unchallenged" was harmless.                                                                                                 | Case |  |                                                                                       | 270         |
| Mentioned |  35. U.S. v. Wogan938 F.2d 1446, 1st Cir.(Me.), 1991Defendant pled guilty to possession of heroin with intent to distribute, distribution of heroin, and conspiracy to distribute heroin and given downward departed sentence equal to...  | Case |  |                                                                                       | 270         |
| Mentioned |  36. U.S. v. Zannino895 F.2d 1, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1990Defendant was convicted of two counts of conducting illegal gambling business and one count of making extortionate loan following jury trial before the United District Court for...  | Case |  |                                                                                       | 273         |

| Treatment          | Referenced Title                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Type | Depth | Quoted | Page Number |
|--------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|-------|--------|-------------|
| Cited              | 37. United States v. Barbosa896 F.3d 60, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 2018CRIMINAL JUSTICE — Arrest. Officer's failure to conduct further investigation before applying for arrest warrant did not demonstrate a reckless disregard for the truth.                         | Case |       |        | 270         |
| Cited              | 38. UNUM Life Ins. Co. of America v. Ward119 S.Ct. 1380, U.S.Cal., 1999INSURANCE - Preemption. ERISA did not preempt state rule requiring insurer to show prejudice from untimely notice of claim.                                                             | Case |       |        | 274         |
| Declined to Extend | 39. Van Dusen v. Barrack84 S.Ct. 805, U.S.Pa., 1964Personal representatives of deceased persons brought mandamus proceeding against a United States District Judge, who had, 204 F.Supp. 426, granted motion of defendants in wrongful...                      | Case |       |        | 271+        |
| Cited              | 40. Viernow v. Euripides Development Corp.157 F.3d 785, 10th Cir.(Utah), 1998Holder of expired stock warrants brought action in Texas state court against corporation and its three founders, alleging various state law securities and trade practices...     | Case |       |        | 271+        |
| Examined           | 41. Wickman v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co.908 F.2d 1077, 1st Cir.(Mass.), 1990Beneficiary filed action against insurer alleging breach of group policy for accidental death and dismemberment benefits. The United States District Court for the District of... | Case |       | ”      | 264+        |
| Cited              | 42. Wightman v. Securian Life Insurance Co.453 F.Supp.3d 460, D.Mass., 2020INSURANCE — Life. Intentional self-inflicted injury exclusion applied to insured's death from autoerotic asphyxiation.                                                              | Case |       | ”      | 268+        |
| Discussed          | 43. Wright v. R.R. Donnelley &amp; Sons Co. Group Benefits Plan402 F.3d 67, 1st Cir.(N.H.), 2005LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT - Benefit Plans. Timing of denial of ERISA benefits did not indicate conflict of interest.                                                | Case |       |        | 268+        |