Making End-Of-Life Decisions

Fr. Paulson

In a perfect world, you would be asked to make end-of-life decisions for someone else because they discussed their wishes with you and asked you to take on this role. In the most perfect world, they would have put their wishes in writing and named you as their healthcare power of attorney. In the absence of that request and documentation, the patient's healthcare provider may ask you to step into this role or a court may assign this role to you as the patient's closest family member, friend, or representative. Catholic perspective on the end-of-life decisions.

Ignatian Spirituality and the Examen

Jim Briggs

The Daily Examen has its roots in Ignatian Spirituality and is a technique of prayerful reflection on the events of the day. An individual makes time to pray the Examen by pausing to consider God's presence and discern where God calls us. St. Ignatius of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuits, thought that the Examen was a gift that came directly from God, and that God wanted it to be shared as widely as possible.
