Hosted by Chris Holmes and Brennan Breed

The Book of James: Wisdom and the Way of Jesus

Syllabus for Summer 202

Wednesdays, August 5–September 2

7:00–8:00 p.m. (EST)

1. Course Description

This course is intended to support the online educational needs of congregations during the COVID-19 pandemic. This course provides a chapter-by-chapter exploration of the Book of James and an examination of its central theological themes.

2. Course Objectives

At the completion of the study, engaged participants will be able to describe the historical and cultural context for the Book of James, the significance of the wisdom genre for understanding James, and the importance of James in the New Testament canon. Participants will be able to reflect theologically upon the Book of James and articulate its theological significance for Christian faith, proclamation, and mission.

3. Learning Resources

Suggested:

- An academic study Bible such as The HarperCollins Study Bible (rev. ed.; eds. H. W. Attridge et al.; San Francisco: HarperSanFrancisco, 2006) or The New Oxford Annotated Study Bible, 5th edition (eds. M. Coogan et. al.; New York: Oxford University Press, 2018) or The CEB Study Bible with Apocrypha (ed. J. Green et. al.; Common English Bible Committee, 2013), or The New Interpreter's Study Bible (ed. W. Harrelson et. al.; Nashville: Abingdon Press, 2003). While many kinds of devotional study Bibles are wonderful tools for your spiritual growth, for the purposes of this class an academic study Bible will enrich your learning by intersecting with the course material.
  - A copy of the Book of James from the New Oxford Annotated Bible will be provided to those who register for the class.

Web-based Resources:

- Many readings for the course will be available on the Bible Odyssey website and other freely available sites. Others can be found on the CTS Sharepoint webpage. Individual links to articles are listed below.
