I was able to create a LinkedIn profile to leverage my connections. I learned how to follow up after sending applications and I feel that has helped with getting more interviews. I've gotten compliments on my resume from recruiters and managers so I'm grateful for the resume review as well. Overall, I obtained more confidence which was running pretty low after extensive job searching. I got a job!

It helped me establish my online professional presence and work on my interview jitters. I consider myself a terrible interviewee but learning how to answer questions really does help.
