7:00 PM – 8:00 PM

LOCATED IN FCC

Sarah Beal, PhD, is a developmental psychologist and researcher at Cincinnati Children's Hospital. She completed her graduate work at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and a postdoctoral fellowship in Adolescent Medicine at Cincinnati Children's. Her research is focused on adolescent experiences that shape development and social relationships in adolescence and early adulthood.

Dr. Beal's presentation, "Transitions in Middle School: What to Expect from Your Developing Teen" will focus on development occurring in early adolescence, including changes to biology, cognition, and behavior, how those changes manifest in school and at-home behaviors, and some tips and tricks for managing normative challenges during this adolescent period.
