Aryeh J. Price (2021-2022 recipient) is currently completing an LL.M. in Gaming Law and Regulation at UNLV. In the course of acquiring a J.D. from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law, his hybrid expertise in science and law inspired him to study the complex jurisprudence of antitrust, intellectual propperty, and space law. Prior to law school, Aryeh received an Honors B.S. from the University of Toronto and an M.S. from Caltech, with a heavy emphasis on cancer genomics research and control theory. He enjoys systematically studying Nevada's gaming industry, and imagining how our regulatory model may one day be exported to novel jurisdictions like Texas and outer space.

Jeff Bollers (2022-2023 recipient) is originally from Thornton, Colorado and holds bachelors degrees from the University of Colorado at Boulder. He earned his J.D. from the Mitchell-Hamline School of Law in Saint Paul, Minnesota, where he graduated cum laude. Following law school, he joined the Denver litigation firm of Spies, Powers & Robinson, P.C., where his practice emphasized the defense of contract, personal injury and insurance bad faith claims and insurance coverage analysis. Mr. Bollers is licensed to practice in Colorado and Arizona. He enters the Gaming Law and Regulation LL.M. program at UNLV with plans to focus his studies on tribal gaming, sports betting and fantasy sports, and the integration of blockchain and cryptography into gaming.

Catherine Msumali (2022-2023 recipient) graduated with her LL.B. in Law from the University of KwaZulu-Natal in South Africa, where she also holds a B.A. in Philosophy, Politics and Law. She is passionate about responsible gaming and is looking at impacting gaming regulation in her home country of Tanzania. She has completed legal internships with Linklaters and ADCA Veritas Law Group, and is the first woman in her family to obtain a college degree. She is excited to begin this new chapter as a student in the LL.M. in Gaming Law and Regulation program at the Boyd School of Law.

The LL.M. in Gaming Law and Regulation premiered in August 2015, and has enrolled recent graduates and practitioners from across the United States and around the globe. Graduates of the program have transitioned into positions with law firms and organizations including the Nevada Gaming Control Board, William Hill, Caesars Entertainment, Aristocrat, CG Compliance, New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, and more.

Sarah Gonzales is Director of Graduate Programs at the William S. Boyd School of Law, at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. She oversees non-JD programs, including the LL.M. in Gaming Law and Regulation and online executive training programs in gaming law.
