SUMMER CAMP

By: Elle Beck

Samantha got out of the house terrified for the first day of camp. When she got on the bus she sat alone. she saw a tall boy punching and pushing a boy next to her.

“Sit with the girl loser ha ha!” laughed the bully.

“Hi my name is George,” mumbled the boy.

“My name is Samantha,” she told George.

“Your all bruised up from that horrible bully!” Samantha told George

“I’m fine,” he mumbled with a tear running down his cheek.

“No, you’re not fine. Take my ice pack,” Samantha told George. Samantha and George talked about things, like how old they were, what they liked best and lots of things. One of the other things they talked about was what the bully’s name was.

“His name is Billy,” George explained.

“Finally, we’re off that stinky old bus,” Samantha and George thought.

“Sam, Billy, Samantha, George, Macy, Camie, Max and Fred, you are in Group A. Your counselors are Isabelle, Cameron and Camille,” the person who runs the camp announced.

“Group A, come to cooking,” the cooking lady screamed across the groups. So, they went to cooking. They made pancakes and Billy, instead of putting sugar in the pancakes, switched it with salt. When George and Samantha ate the pancakes, they were disgusting and Billy started to laugh. They knew it was him for sure. Camille made them eat all of it until she tried it herself.

“That was disgusting,” Samantha whispered to George. The rest of the day was fine, but Billy annoyed the other kids.

The next day, everything got worse. Billy made Camie accidentally hit Samantha with the arrow in archery.

“Samantha, are you okay?” George asked while showing the counselors.

“You’re lucky that it was not a real arrow. It was sharp, but plastic,” Isabelle explained. Samantha stayed in the nurse’s office, the rest of the day.

Samantha rested, then heard George say, “time to go.”

George helped her to the bus and told her everything she had missed. “Today we went to swim and Billy almost drowned Macy. Then we went to art and drew a mustache on Cameron and blamed it on Fred. Then, at lunch, he smashed everyone’s lunch on the floor. Next, we went on a creek walk and Billy pushed me and I fell flat on my face!”

When Samantha got home, she told her mom about camp. Mom said, “tomorrow, go up to him and ask him to apologize!” That made Samantha feel better.

The next day Samantha keeps a sharp eye out during cooking. After cooking, she gets the courage to go up to Billy and say, “Why are you so mean to everyone!?!”

“I’m mean because I want to,” he said while running away. The next day she asked again and again and again until he told her the truth.

“Because I have no friends,” he admitted. Samantha explained to him that if he’s mean, he will have less friends.

“So what can I do to make a friend?” Billy asked. Samantha told him everything she knew. Billy made friends with everyone and had a blast.

Two days later, Samantha goes to Billy's house and they play a board game with Billy's mom. When it was done, they had lunch and Billy said, “Every time I accomplish finding a friend I thanked Samantha for helping me!”

“I was glad to help!” Samantha told Billy’s mom. Then Billy’s mom took Samantha home and everything was taken care of.
