

Citizens' Responsibilities

People in the United States have rights, and they also have responsibilities.
 People should obey the law.
 The "rule of law" is a basic principle of American democracy.
 Everyone must follow the law.
 No one is above the law.

People in the United States should pay taxes.
 They should send in federal income tax forms and pay income taxes.
 April 15 is usually the last day you can send in federal income tax forms.
 In many states, people also pay state income taxes.
 In some cities and counties, people also pay local income taxes.

Men in the United States must serve in the military if they are needed.
 All men must register for the Selective Service at age eighteen—citizens and non-citizens.
 Men who are older than age eighteen when they enter the United States must register before their 26th birthday.

Some responsibilities are only for United States citizens.
