

Foyer Groups (A.k.a.; Small Group Dinners)

The English word Foyer is derived from foier - French term for hearthside and projects an image of warmth and comfort. For untold generations it has been customary for Americans to welcome old friends, family members and newcomers into our homes by gathering at the hearthside to celebrate special occasions, to enjoy times of fellowship and share moments of camaraderie. In tune with this time-honored tradition of hospitality the Anglican Community has for many years encouraged small informal Parish gatherings called Foyer Groups; small, close-knit groups of parishioners sharing a common bond of Christian love and concern for one another.

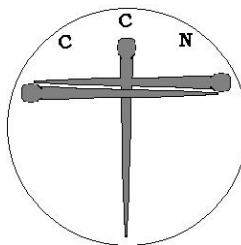

History of Foyer Groups

The idea originated at the Cathedral of St. Michael, in the Diocese of Coventry, England – born of the massive devastation inflicted at the height of the German Blitz on London and Coventry during World War II. During one of the many air raids conducted in 1940, the city's 14th century cathedral was completely destroyed as a result of the aerial bombardment.

Rather than dwell on the violent loss of his beloved place of worship, the local Provost was inspired to found a ministry of reconciliation that he called the Community of the Cross and Nails. While sifting through the rubble of the cathedral, he gathered many of the old nails that had fallen among the ruins and was inspired to have them twisted together to form a cross. This cross of nails and the words "Father, Forgive" became the unifying symbol of the International Ministry of Reconciliation, a group of devout followers who believe that understanding between peoples, nations, and ideologies can come only when human beings meet and know each other as individuals. They truly live out the maxim "Let there be peace on earth and let it begin with me."

In 1967, the Coventry Cathedral staff began meeting together in small informal groups as a means "to bridge divisions which subtly separate us one from another"; as a result of meetings they noticed a powerful bond forming among the staff members who joined what they came to call the Foyer Group. 2 years later, the Foyer movement spread to Coventry Cathedral congregation and then beyond. In time, Foyer Groups began springing up in parishes all over Britain and in America. Today, many Episcopal churches throughout the United States have foyer groups that promote fellowship amongst members and encourage the informal exchange of ideas, experiences and common problems within friendly home surroundings and in a Christian context.

So, what exactly are Foyer Groups?

Foyer Groups are a fun and easy way for parishioners to gather together on a regular but informal basis for purely social reasons – to enjoy one another's company, to strengthen bonds of community, to meet new members and just to get to know other people who share a common interest in Grace but with whom we might not otherwise interact. They provide a means to develop new friendships and deepen old ones and are a way to make our sometimes-too-large-seeming parish feel smaller and warmer.

There is no agenda or plan – just casual fellowship and a made up of singles, couples, young people, retired folks, etc., in of the parish. Out of the meetings, friendships develop among any other opportunity to meet and get to know each other. invited to join one of the groups at any time.

Some groups have elected to study and discuss certain books, or incorporate an evening devotional into the gathering, while others gather for a purely social experience. The choice of available options is limited only by the collective imagination of the group, but the main idea if for the gatherings to simply focus on Christian fellowship, a refreshing meal and relaxed conversation.

New groups form at the beginning of each year, and new members are always welcome. The groups are put together randomly in order to add an element of spontaneity, such that each of us might have the opportunity to get to know others in the parish who may be outside our normal circle of acquaintance. In other words, this is a great way to meet and get to know those you might not have a chance to visit with otherwise.

Foyer Group Q&A

Q. How will Foyer Groups be set up?

A. Once you sign up, you'll be randomly grouped with three or four other singles and/or couples, potentially from different circles of the parish community and in varying phases of life. We will take into consideration your preferences regarding smoking, alcohol, and pets in the home and will mail you contact information for your group, as well as a list of suggestions for how to get started.

Q. I'm not much of a cook. Do I really have to be able to eight or ten people in order to join a Foyer Group?

A. Foyer Group gatherings are intended to be shared meals, preparation. Typically, the host might provide the main dish members contributing the appetizer, salad, side dish, bread, grocery stores and restaurants offer tasty, freshly prepared can serve. Those with the inspiration and capability to prepare are, of course, welcome to do so, but that's not the

Q. My home/condo/apartment isn't large enough to hold eight to ten people for a sit-down dinner. Can I still join a Foyer Group?

A. Who says the meal must be a sit-down dinner? There are several alternatives. You could plan a menu of finger- and fork-food that can be eaten from plates held on laps while sitting on sofas, chairs, or the floor. Or, when it's your turn to host, arrange for the group to meet at a local buffet-style restaurant, or reserve the picnic area at a county park and host a cookout.

Q. I have food allergies. How can I be sure that other group members' meal contributions will be suitable for me?

A. If you have food allergies, dietary restrictions, or strong taste preferences, please simply inform your group of your concerns at the beginning so that everyone understands what they must consider when planning their menus. All participants should make their best effort to accommodate the needs of their fellow group members.

Q. Are Foyer Groups for adults only, or are children welcome to participate?

A. Whether your group's gatherings are for grown-ups only or include kids too, is largely up to the membership and will depend on the ages of the children in the group's families. Hosting a meal for just the adults allows for undistracted conversations, while including children unquestionably livens up the evening. The group should attempt to strike a comfortable balance that accommodates the needs and concerns of all members.

Q. Is there some "program" or entertainment we should offer when we gather?

A. The primary goal of Foyer Groups is to extend and deepen ties within the parish by giving people a chance to get to know one another better, and that is most easily accomplished through conversation. There is no requirement for structured debate or religious experience (well, it would be nice if you say grace before eating!). However, if the group is so inclined, you could play a party game after dinner, or you could arrange to attend a movie together and then discuss it afterward over the meal. For some people who struggle to make small talk with those they don't know well yet, having something in particular to do or to discuss helps facilitate the process of becoming acquainted. Each family is encouraged to personalize their hosting turn according to their interests. Just chatting and nibbling is fine too!

Captain's Role

1. Main organizer of the group
2. Sets schedule for the group
3. Determines hosts/hostesses for the group
4. Point of contact for questions
5. Keeps in communication with the group and Tom Martin of the Evangelism Forum for any questions, needs, etc.

Host/Hostess Role

6. People should make EVERY EFFORT to accommodate those with food allergies or strong dislikes.
7. Conclude the festivities close to the stated time, usually two to two and one-half hours in length.
8. It is a good idea to email or call all members during the week before a get-together to remind them of the date and time and confirm menu item bringing.
9. Before the meal, the host/hostess should assume the responsibility for the Prayer for the Parish Family and Grace or asking someone else to lead.
10. Meals range from simple and inexpensive to more substantial when holidays or birthdays are a factor.
11. Variety and all types of meals are good. Sometimes groups make dinner reservations, have a picnic or order pizza! Some Hosts like to provide the entire meal. It is up to the group to decide how they want to manage the food part.
12. Ordinarily, each couple or single members serve as host/hostess for the meetings. However, there should never be any feeling of neglect of responsibility or embarrassment on anyone's part if this is not possible.
13. Members of the group may choose to co-host with other members of the group which is appropriate.
14. Each group selects a time to gather convenient for all members. Time selected for the first month's gathering does not determine the time selected for the following month. Everyone should bring his or her calendar, i-phone, scrap of paper, photographic memory or whatever device used to keep track of where you are supposed to be for your Foyers meeting.
15. Regular attendance by all members is very important. Something vital is missing when someone is absent. If it is impossible to attend, let the host/hostess know in advance. In the case of illness, consider rescheduling.
