

Induction 2018 was a celebration of great moments in women's basketball history as the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame celebrated their 20th Induction and kicked off their 20th anniversary year on June 9 at the Historic Tennessee Theatre. The ceremony was attended by over 1200 attendees including over 30 former Inductees. The Class of 2018 did not disappoint with their acceptance speeches, sharing their history being a part of our great game. The WBL took their deserved place in the WBHOF with over 100 attending the weekend activities. This was a time of reunion, shared stories and love of fellow players and coaches.

The WBHOF opened the Induction weekend with the unveiling of a new Hall of Honor, recognizing our 164 inductees and the Class of 2018. If you have not been to the hall recently, you need to check out this updated area along with the incredible stained glass window designed by local artist Danny Wilson. The window honors our mission of the WBHOF, "Honor the Past, Celebrate the Present and Promote the Future" of the women's game.

The Tip-Off Theatre has also been updated with a three-part presentation showcasing the past from 1892 to 1982, the present from 1982-2018 and the future with inspirational interviews with some of our Inductees.

As always, we appreciate your support of the WBHOF and look to you as our ambassadors of the game. Share the WBHOF news and share the history of our game.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Dana Hart".

WBHOF President