TEAM CANNON

Welcome to the Team Cannon Your New Mexico Home (YNMH) program! The decision to become part of the YNMH team comes with reasonable expectations and responsibilities from you, the airman. In exchange for their kindness, our Host Families request the following from you:

- Understand the importance of the "RSVP" - if an event/activity requires an RSVP from you, please honor that request. If you plan to attend, RSVP "Yes". If you do not plan to attend, RSVP "No". Please do not show up without clearing it with the Host if you previously stated you would not and if you stated you would be there, and there has been a change of plans, please notify your host as soon as possible. Failure to RSVP, or RSVP "Yes" and then not show a total of three times will be means for removal from the program.
- Please do not bring a guest to an event/activity without receiving permission from your host first.
- Treat your host's home and possessions with care. They have worked hard for everything in their home. Some things have monetary value, some sentimental. Regardless of the value, it is important that you are respectful of all their things. Some examples include not putting feet on furniture, taking shoes off upon entering the house.
- Respect your host's privacy. Do not go into uncommon (bedrooms, private bathrooms, laundry rooms, closets, garage, etc.) areas of the home without permission from the host family.
- When in your Host's home, please respect and abide by their family rules. If you are uncertain of something, be safe and ask. It is encouraged to have this discussion with your Host early on in order to understand what the house rules are.
- If your Host has children, please be mindful of the example you are setting. Those children will be paying attention to your actions, language, moods, etc.
