Human Resources

- As we continue through this difficult time, the Benefits team has provided new resources associated with the ongoing traumatic events in our communities. These resources are provided by the Life Assistance Program \(LAP\) that share helpful guidance and support for you, your teams and for co-workers. These resources include such topics as coping with violence in the community, supporting a co-worker after a critical incident, stress reactions and self-care strategies after a traumatic event, and more. These resources can be found on Town Square and will be sent to all employees as part of a broader communication that includes multiple self-preservation and self-care resources later today.
- The monthly resource for leaders, “Leading through Crisis” is now available for the month of June. The document contains current articles, videos, podcasts and webinars focused on communicating, leading teams, embracing change and building resiliency during crisis. In this month’s edition, we want to highlight resources from the American Psychological Association and Mental Health America, that focus on balancing the well-being of ourselves and teams with caring for our patients and communities, all amidst the continuation of the global pandemic and recent traumatic events.
