

Thoughts from the Chair

Let us love one another!

The love and care from another will heal a broken heart, move someone from the back or the end of something to the front and or the beginning of it at the right time. It will help someone who is in need. It supports. True love in the hearts of people and leaders allows justice to prevail. A heart filled with true love will always assess a situation before responding. The heart filled with true love rejects selfishness, superiority, entitlement and jealousy and will always choose peace and wisdom. I have found where there is true love in the heart of any person; peace, justice, order, submission, goodness, self-control and meekness are also present. I have witnessed when a leader chooses to allow their heart to be filled with true love for themselves and the people they serve, a healthy community or team of people is naturally produced, a group where strategies for success for the whole team are established. Where the mission is accomplished with excellence and everyone wins. Where there are schemes, deceit, iniquity, manipulation, domination and control in the heart of any person there is entitlement, depression, rejection, ignorance, failure, envy, jealousy, prejudice, dysfunction and chaos amongst the people who they live, work, lead and or commune with. A heart of true love will help us understand each other with compassion. Let us love one another!

Have a good month!

Blessings...
