

South Marshall Street was the place to be on October 21st!

Lively music and unusually warm weather made for a terrific afternoon recently on South Marshall Street. Asylum Hill Neighborhood Association, Habitat for Humanity and the S. Marshall Interfaith Coalition served cider, donuts and apples, and gave away 150 pumpkins, 60 plants, 100 pairs of socks, over 1,000 children's books, and had lots of conversation with the residents.

The great DJ, food and activities helped attract hundreds of residents and passersby. Children filled sacks with their favorite books for themselves and then selected a plant for their parents. Some would take their treasures home and then return for pumpkins, apples, donuts and delicious cider, sometimes competing with the bees to get a drink! The young DJ's drew quite a crowd of young people wanting to learn how a DJ produced the music for the event. Thanks to all the volunteers and residents who made this such a fun-filled afternoon on S. Marshall St. For more photos go to:
