

Rectangular Rapid-Flashing Beacons (RRFBs) in Jeffco

Jefferson County understands the importance of prioritizing pedestrian safety. The county has been installing RRFBs at locations that see high pedestrian use.

Motorists and pedestrians should be aware that a flashing RRFB is not the same as a red light, and drivers are not required to stop.

When pedestrians wish to cross the street, they must push the button to activate the warning lights, wait for a clear gap, and then cross. The lights warn motorists to be aware that pedestrians are present.

Always look both ways, wait for a safe gap, and cross when the roadway is clear.

It is important that all roadway users follow the law. Be vigilant, help keep each other safe.
