The Ultimate Robbery: Executive Briefing on ATM Jackpotting Threats in America

*Captain Jeff Roberts, Head of Intelligence Operations
Texas Financial Crimes Intelligence Center (TFCIC)*

TFCIC, the first agency of it's kind in the U.S., was created to coordinate law enforcement's response to organized financial fraud.

Since 2021, ATM jackpotting – once nearly nonexistent in the U.S. – has emerged as a widespread and organized threat targeting financial infrastructure across our nation. This high-level executive briefing will explore the evolving tactics behind these attacks, examine the profiles of the threat actors involved, and provide an overview of coordinated law enforcement efforts focused on detection, disruption, and deterrence.

This session will offer a strategic lens into:

- Scope and Impact: A review of U.S. trends in ATM jackpotting, including estimated financial losses, regional hotspots, and the systemic vulnerabilities being exploited.
- Threat Actor Profiles: Insights into the transnational organized criminal groups leveraging jackpotting as a funding mechanism. The discussion will highlight their operational sophistication and connections to broader financial crime networks.
- Attack Techniques: An executive-level overview of malware-based (logical) and hardware-based (physical) jackpotting methods – without delving into technical minutiae.
- Law Enforcement/Industry Response: An examination of law enforcement investigations, interagency coordination, and public-private intelligence sharing.

4:45–5:30 p.m.
