United by a concern for our increasingly divided communities, the Emerging Leaders for Community Change (ELCC) cohort equips emerging young adult leaders of faith with long-term skills to implement their own initiatives that address divisions within their immediate communities and wider society.

ELCC recognizes that leading with values and faith is needed to bridge divides. ELCC empowers young leaders to create meaningful, lasting change through optimistic leadership in their communities.

If you are passionate about investing in your community and interested in engaging with different perspectives, we encourage you to apply for the next ELCC cohort. There are no specific work or educational requirements. People of all faiths, backgrounds, and political perspectives are encouraged to apply.
