

SDSCon 2020

Statistics and Data Science Conference

Friday, April 3, 2020 | MIT Building E14-674

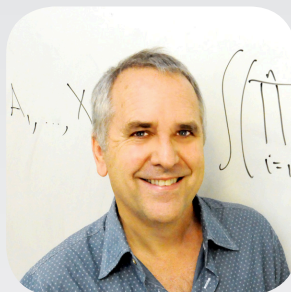

SDSCon is a celebration and community-building event for those interested in statistics and data science. Discussions will cover applications of statistics and data science across a wide range of fields and approaches. SDSCon is organized by the MIT Statistics and Data Science Center (SDSC), an MIT-wide focal point for advancing academic programs and research activities in statistics and data science that is part of the MIT Institute for Data, Systems, and Society (IDSS).

S P E A K E R S

ELISA CELIS

*Assistant Professor,
Department of Statistics
and Data Science,
Yale University*

MICHAEL JORDAN

*Pehong Chen Distinguished Professor, Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Sciences &
Department of Statistics,
UC Berkeley*

XIAO-LI MENG

*Whipple V. N. Jones
Professor of Statistics,
Harvard University*

PHILIP NELSON

Director of Engineering, Google Research

TRACY SLATYER

*Jerrold R. Zacharias
Career Development
Professor of Physics, MIT*

ANDREW STUART

*Bren Professor of Computing and Mathematical Sciences,
Caltech*

PRAGYA SUR

*Postdoctoral Fellow,
John A. Paulson
School of Engineering and Applied Sciences,
Harvard University*