Gottlieb Lecture:
“A Journey for Survival”

Mark Schonwetter was a young child in Brzostek, Poland when Germany invaded and his family was forced out of their home. After his father was taken by the Gestapo, Mark's mother fled with him and his sister to a nearby ghetto. After narrowly escaping the ghetto extermination, the family went into hiding in the Polish countryside, where they remained for three years. By the end of the war, Mark was one of only a few surviving Jews from Brzostek.

Mark ultimately emigrated to the U.S. in 1961. He obtained work in a jewelry factory, and within 10 years had the opportunity to purchase another jewelry company. He sold his company in 2011 and remained in the business until he retired in 2018. The Mark Schonwetter Holocaust Education Foundation was established by his two daughters to expand and support Holocaust Education for students in middle and high schools around the country, and to provide the funds necessary for educators to implement curriculum into their lesson plans.
