Make Our Stage Your Classroom!

With 1018 plush covered seats, our classroom provides professional live performances, acclaimed literature, and educational support for students as well as adults. The Glema Mahr Center for the Arts is committed to providing quality performances designed to expand students' understanding and appreciation of the arts and to enrich the curriculum, making direct connections between the arts and Kentucky Educational Guidelines.

Most performances are 9:30 a.m. and 12 noon, except where noted. Cost is $6 per seat for every performance and as in the past, payment may be made by school purchase order, Visa, Discover, MasterCard, American Express, cash, or check.

Payment or purchase order is due two weeks before the performance. To assure seats to your selected performances, just estimate the number of students and adults attending, complete the order form and mail to the Glema Mahr Center for the Arts. E-mail the information to troberts0212@kctcs.edu, or call 270-824-8652.

This is a story about a girl and her Nan. The girl's name is Rapunzel, and she likes painting with every color imaginable, watching the birds fly down to the seashore, and singing her Nan's old lullaby. But as Rapunzel grows older and older, and her hair grows longer and longer, her curiosity grows bigger and BIGGER as she wonders what lies behind the distant horizon. Join us once upon a time and once upon a place in this re-telling of a classic fairy tale that celebrates life's little adventures, the magic of growing up, and the strong love of family.

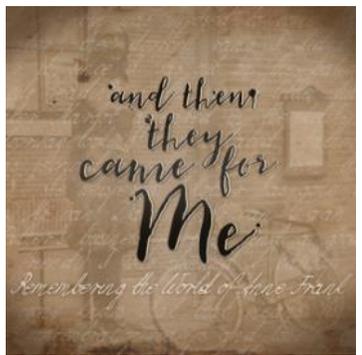

You'll like this play if you like stories about: family, fairytales with a twist, growing up, strong female

September, 1962. Ever since I was just a kid, I have dreamed of becoming an astronaut. Of not just looking at the moon through my telescope or watching movies about what it might be like, but actually discovering it for myself. And guess what? My dream might actually be possible! The Space Race is on - and now I'm racing to be a part of it. I'll do whatever it takes - graduate early, go to interview after interview, start flight training - I just have to be on that Apollo Program team. My name is Scott Gibson, and one day soon, I am going to touch the stars.

Running Time: Approximately 1 hour

You'll like this play if you like stories about: strong female characters, history, adventure, mysteries
