

SHABBAT MESSAGE
NOVEMBER 5, 2021

Hi Everyone.

I hope you've had a great week! As I've mentioned in my last few messages, things at the Alliance are really starting to pick up. Today, that's marked by the return of one of our most popular events, the Evening of Jewish Renaissance. Except this year, we are spreading it out over several evenings. I'm so grateful to the Dr. James and Judge Marjorie Yashar Fund for making this event possible.

For those not familiar, the Evenings of Jewish Renaissance offer an opportunity for learning around topics connected to our Jewish culture, identity, and religion. This year, we'll have a variety of in-person and online events so that you can find something that is not only interesting and thought-provoking, but fits with your Covid comfort level.

I'm personally excited to hear from Pam Schuller on comedy, disability, and creating an inclusive community. I'm also looking forward to hearing from Rabbi Hanan Schlesinger and Noor A'wad from Roots who will talk about how they work as unlikely partners for peace in Israel. Those are just two of many programs we'll be offering from November 14th through the 16th. For more information and to register, you can visit jewishallianceri.org/ejr. We hope you'll join us, either in person or virtually.

Finally today, a personal note of thanks to everyone who listened to the first two episodes of our podcast, Chutzpah! I'm truly humbled that so many have enjoyed the interviews, and I hope you enjoy episode three, with Rhode Island Foundation CEO Neil Steinberg, which we released yesterday. You can find it on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, or jewishrhody.org.

Until next time, I wish you all a safe, peaceful, and joyous Shabbat.

Shabbat Shalom!
