TRAINING AND EDUCATION FOR THE ADVOCATEMENT OF CHILDREN'S HEALTH

FREE New York State Conference on Maternal Depression

Join renowned experts Dr. Lee Cohen and Dr. Marlene Freeman at this FREE conference to align your practice with the statewide effort to screen for, diagnose and treat maternal depression.

Friday, October 12, 8 a.m. – 5 p.m.
Hilton Albany, 40 Lodge Street, Albany, NY

This conference helps you provide the best possible care to mothers both during and after pregnancy. It is ideal for all providers in primary care, psychiatry, pediatrics, OB/GYN, and other practices who treat women and children.

In 2018 New York State launched a broad effort to combat maternal depression. Maternal depression and related mood and anxiety disorders are prevalent. If you can identify and treat these conditions early, it leads to better health outcomes.

Attend this conference to network with renowned leaders in maternal mental health.

Earn 6.5 CME/CE credits and enhance how you:

- Identify effective evidence-based screening and treatment strategies
- Prioritize practice change around screening, treatment, payment and more
- Use strategies that work for patient-centered care, stigma reduction, and engagement
- Help break down barriers to creating healthy children and families across New York State

Let Project TEACH help your practice create the best outcomes for mothers, their children, and their families. This event is ideal for:

- Primary care physicians
- Family physicians
- Pediatricians
- OB/GYNs
- Adult psychiatrists
- Child and adolescent psychiatrists
- Nurse practitioners
