Thousands of church properties worth billions of dollars are being sold or repurposed each year. Nothing can stop the currents of change. But congregations, mid-councils and cities can take steps now to ensure that church-owned properties are used for positive social impact in their communities rather than for private interests.

Join us for a church-wide book study of this informative, insightful and thought-provoking collection of essays that explore the spiritual, sociological and practical aspects of church property transition. Contributed by pastors, scholars, developers and urban planners and edited by Rev. Mark Elsdon, this is a must read for any congregation considering a transformed future for its property, buildings and ministry.
