A Note from Lisa Hansen

As I settle into the position of Executive Presbyter, I plan to share with everyone some of my personal and faith journey. I have been shaped by the places I've lived, the churches I've attended, and the many shoes I've filled and hats I've worn. I will also be sharing how I continue to seek justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with God in our current political context. This is not to support any one side, but to share how I deal with the multitude of concerns and needs that not only surround us but have become political hot-button issues. I will share with you some of the joy I experience attending the many churches in the Presbytery. Finally, I will be sharing with you what it means to be connected as members of this Presbytery and how we can work together to support the various needs of the people who live and work around our churches, as well as those who enter through our doors. Beginning next week, I will be following the following schedule:

First Monday – Who I am

Second Monday – How I am

Third Monday – Where I am

Fourth Monday – What I am
