Decrypting Crypto: The Anatomy of Bitcoin webinar

October 16, 2026

Presented live via Teams

This webinar teaches participants the fundamentals of how Bitcoin works. It covers the origin of Bitcoin; key concepts and terminology; what a “blockchain” is, how it is built, and why Bitcoin consumes so much energy to run; and the role of “miners” in propagating the blockchain. It includes a brief overview of how liens in Bitcoin are achieved and (possibly) enforced, along with a brief discussion of the risks and benefits of the 2022 Uniform Commercial Code amendments as they relate to cryptocurrency.

After attending this webinar, participants will

- Understand key terms, such as “key,” “address,” “wallet,” “blockchain,” and “miner,” and how each relates to Bitcoin
- Understand exactly what a “bitcoin” is
- Have a conceptual understanding of how Bitcoin processes and secures transactions
- Understand why concerns have been expressed regarding effects on climate from Bitcoin’s security mechanism
- Have a better understanding of how Bitcoin is treated under the Uniform Commercial Code

A Q&A session will immediately follow the presentation.
