Choose your favorite Bow Stroke:

Legato [leˈga:to]

Italian for "tied together"; indicates that musical notes are played smoothly and connected. That is, the player makes a transition from note to note with no intervening silence.

Smooth and vibrant, rich flavor from Indonesia presenting a delicious full body, long finish, earthy and gentle acidity.

Portato [porˈta:to]

Italian past participle of portare, "to carry"; denotes a smooth, pulsing articulation and is often notated by adding dots under slur markings.

Rich in body and flavor from Latin America with bright flavors, light body and a crisp finish.

Spiccato [spikˈka:to]

Italian past participle of the verb spiccare, "to separate". A bowing technique in which the bow appears to bounce lightly upon the string.

Lively, well rounded bean from Africa with floral aroma, sweet tones, balance and a delightful complexity.

Tremolo [ˈtrɛ:molo]

A trembling effect of a single note, particularly used on bowed string instruments, by rapidly moving the bow back and forth.

A blend of African and Latin American beans to represent the rhythmic value of the two coffee growing regions.
