Coping after a Traumatic Event

Israeli/Palestinian Conflict

Some tragedies involve unthinkable acts of violence, which can be difficult to understand. We’re here with support when you need it.
If you turn on the TV, pick up a newspaper or go on the internet, you’ll likely find the news is full of stories that can evoke strong emotions. Resilience is the ability to cope with your emotions and allows you to bounce back from tough situations.

What are common responses to a traumatic event?

- Intense feelings. Right after the event, you may feel shocked and overwhelmed. For a while, you may be jumpy, irritable or depressed. It may be hard to focus, concentrate or make decisions.

- Physical stress like headaches, dizziness and nausea. Keep an eye on these, as you may need to seek medical attention.

- Unexpected emotional reactions. For example, hearing sirens or loud noises may cause strong emotions, reactions or grief. You may also have changes in sleeping or eating patterns.

- Strained relationships. You may find yourself fighting with friends and loved ones. Or you may feel withdrawn and tend to keep to yourself. Try to get back to socializing with at least one or two family members or friends.

Some tips for recovering from a traumatic event

Ask for help

Talk to others about your thoughts and feelings, if you feel comfortable doing so. Identify supportive and helpful people you can turn to when you need help or advice. Also try keeping a journal.
Choose when to connect
Disconnecting from media may give you time to focus on important things — like your health or stress management.

Change your perspective
Try to find something you’ve learned from the negative experience. It may be helpful to gain a broader perspective.

Focus on your feelings
Acknowledge your feelings as they occur to you. Self-awareness is an important first step in learning to manage your feelings.

Practice healthy behaviors
Get plenty of sleep, eat a well-balanced diet and get physical activity.*

Start a routine
Get back in the habit of sleeping and eating at regular times. Consider taking up a new hobby or other activities that you enjoy.

Real people. Real life. Real solutions.
