

Presented by ECHO Colorado in Partnership with Colorado Department of Health & Environment:

Only 23 percent of Children on Medicaid in Colorado have been tested for lead at ages 12 or 24 months.

Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention: Improving Blood Lead Testing and Reporting in Colorado's Children is a four-session ECHO series designed to increase blood lead testing and reporting rates among providers across Colorado. The content was developed for primary care providers who serve Medicaid and at-risk patients.

Participants learn about the common sources of lead in Colorado, how to screen patients and how to care for children with elevated blood lead levels. In addition to didactic teaching, each session includes case study scenarios and in-depth examinations of real-life situations that will be analyzed and discussed.
