

Cincinnati & Dublin, May 1, 2019 Altix Consulting Inc, a greater Cincinnati based boutique consulting firm specializing in strategy and operation for international manufacturing champions, is proud to announce that it is joining forces with LCL Consulting Ltd, a Dublin, Ireland based boutique consulting firm recognized as the global leader in transforming traditional factories into Lean benchmark sites in both, high and low cost countries across the US, Europe and Asia.

Liam Cassidy, Managing Director of LCL Consulting and Yannick Schilly, President of Altix Consulting, have a long-standing history of successful collaboration in Lean transformation in China and the US, and are excited to announce their continued collaboration. In addition to their global alliance, Altix is announcing the official establishment of its first European office in Dublin, Ireland, to support the continued development of the partnership.

LCL (Leading Change through Lean) Consult, Ltd was established in 2009 by Liam Cassidy, who has earned the reputation of world leader in Lean management with an impressive 40+ year track record of turning around poorly performing operations, supply chains and suppliers. LCL provides rapid turnaround solutions to apply Lean Principles – without compromise – coupled with the leadership skills necessary to implement them and ensure long term success and has been recognized by major international institutes and journals. The company operates globally with an office in Dublin, Ireland.

Altix Consulting, Inc is a boutique consulting firm specializing in advanced manufacturing and international supply chain management. The company provides support with global business strategy, technology & innovation, operational excellence, workforce development, training & education. With a combined international expertise of over 100 years, spanning three continents, Altix partners offer a hands-on approach – from industry for industry – with focus on long term success for their clients.
