Courses:

Fords Colony: Blackheath—The 18-hole "Blackheath" course at the Ford's Colony Country Club facility in Williamsburg, Virginia features 6,621 yards of golf from the longest tees for a par of 72. The course rating is 71.8 and it has a slope rating of 133 on Bent grass. Designed by Dan F. Maples, ASGCA.

Golden HorseShoe: Green Course—Opened in 1991, Rees Jones drew inspiration from his father Robert Trent Jones Sr.'s iconic Gold Course to create the acclaimed Green Course in Colonial Williamsburg. Carved from the same beautiful parkland terrain, the Green Course is longer than Gold but also more forgiving.

Royal New Kent: Royal New Kent has been called "the truest representation of an Irish links in America" and is reminiscent of the Irish Landscape where links courses such as Royal County Down and Ballyunion were built. The landing areas are wide, therefore, played from the correct set of tees for different levels of ability the tee shot is not too dangerous. This is a course that requires focus and concentration on the second shots as there are varieties of danger and difficulty lurking, including 105 strategically placed bunkers, most of them large and/or deep. Each hole offers several playing options to fit a wide range of golfer abilities. The 282 acres presents golfers with open spaces and panoramic vistas unlike any other course in the east coast. The new tag line is "Golf Ireland in Virginia".

Come join LPGA-Southern Maryland Chapter for a fun-filled, golf playing weekend. Wonderful golf courses have been selected, that will be exciting, and rewarding, all while sharing the time with family and friends.
