

Civia Tamarkin is an award-winning investigative journalist, documentary filmmaker and former television news executive. Tamarkin formerly was a CNN executive and Executive Producer of CNN's Emmy Award weekly news magazine show CNN & Time. She has reported stories in Central America, Africa, India and Southeast Asia, including the fall of Vietnam and its aftermath.

Tamarkin has received a National News and Documentary Emmy, National Headliner Awards, and the Edward R. Murrow Award among others. She recently returned from the Seoul International Women's Film Festival where her documentary Birthright: A War Story was featured.