As we enter 2020 we are gearing up to work toward major changes to move us forward on critical issues NCJW supports . I recently met with AZ Rep. Athena Salmon regarding bills that directly affect women's reproductive justice. I am also meeting with the Co-CEO of the Coalition to End Domestic Violence to start looking at how we can create a Rape Crisis Center that will provide services for rape victims and victims of domestic abuse. And before the year is out, I intend to discuss our plans for gun safety with AZ Rep. Jennifer Longdon.

I just returned from our NCJW office in Washington DC where I attend the Benchmark training that addressed the federal justice system and the political appointments of judges who have little or no experience or who don't uphold the values that guarantee justice for all. We look forward to working with many of you to show what NCJW stands for and how we want to make a difference for everyone.
