

Special Education Parent Leadership Roundtables

*"I know everything I need to know about special education, and I am always successful in advocating for my child. I always know the best way to make sure she gets everything she needs."
said very few parents, ever. . .*

Some parents always seem to know all the answers. They know who to contact, what questions to ask, and where to go for information about special education. Wouldn't you like to know what they know?

Join us for this parent leadership roundtable. You'll have the opportunity to meet with other parent leaders, school professionals and community members to share information, resources, tips and strategies to build skills and knowledge. Parents, professionals and system partners can work together to improve programs and outcomes for children with disabilities.
