Communications Toolkit: All In Video

All In: Data for Community Health (www.allindata.org) is a learning collaborative that helps communities across the country build capacity to address the social determinants of health through multi-sector data sharing collaborations.

We are excited to share our new animated video, which explains what the All In learning collaborative is, why it's important, and how communities can get involved.

We hope that you will consider sharing it with your network. See below for content that can be used for social media and newsletters. Please feel free to tweak to your needs and audience and contact us if you have any questions.

Facebook posts

- How can we get a more complete picture of what makes us healthy? We need data that extends beyond health care. Learn how #AllInData4Health is building capacity to share data across all the sectors that influence health. https://vimeo.com/220337044

- #AllInData4Health brings together communities across the country that are sharing data across sectors to improve health. Watch this video to see how you can get involved! https://vimeo.com/220337044

- Are you sharing data with other sectors to better understand and improve health? #AllInData4Health can help you connect, share, and learn with other communities across the U.S. https://vimeo.com/220337044

Twitter posts

- How can we use multi-sector data to improve health? #AllInData4Health is spreading lessons learned. https://vimeo.com/220337044

- By joining forces, data sharing initiatives can accelerate progress toward improved health for all #AllInData4Health https://vimeo.com/220337044

- #AllInData4Health brings together communities across the U.S. that are sharing data to improve health. https://vimeo.com/220337044

- Are you sharing data with other sectors to improve health? #AllInData4Health can help you connect, share, and learn! https://vimeo.com/220337044

- Video: See how #AllInData4Health is building capacity to share data across all the sectors that influence health. https://vimeo.com/220337044

Newsletter article

New Video: All In: Data for Community Health

We know that to make communities healthier, we need to expand our lens beyond health care to share data with other sectors like social services, housing, and education. This is no easy task, so it's critical that local data sharing collaborations share their challenges and successes. A new video from All In: Data for Community Health explains how communities across the U.S. are joining forces to spread lessons learned.

Watch the video | Learn more about All In