

SPECIAL ISSUE ON Resilience & Wellbeing throughout the Lifespan of People Living with HIV

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Journal of the Association of Nurses in AIDS Care (JANAC) plans to publish a special issue on the topic of Resilience & Wellbeing throughout the Lifespan of People Living with HIV in the beginning of 2022. We are seeking feature articles (including original research and systematic reviews), as well as practice briefs, program briefs, commentaries, and case studies. We encourage a critical uptake of the concepts of resilience and wellbeing. Of special interest are manuscripts in the following areas:

- Novel research methodologies and methods to study resilience and wellbeing among people living with HIV
- Theoretical approaches, models and interventions which emphasize living and aging well with HIV
- Promoting resilience and wellbeing among people living with HIV throughout the lifespan including separate manuscripts on the following special populations
  - Perinatally infected/pediatric patients living with HIV
  - Older adults living with HIV
  - Women living with HIV
  - Individuals from diverse sexual and gender populations
  - Racial and ethnically diverse populations
  - People Living with HIV in Low and Middle Income Countries
- Policy analyses of legislation impacting resilience and wellbeing of people living with HIV
- Insights gained on resilience by long-term HIV survivors and affected communities
- Research focused on understanding resilience and wellbeing in relation to HIV as political concepts

The due date for submissions

for the Resilience & Wellbeing among People Living with HIV special issue of JANAC is on or before December 1, 2020
