Reinforcing social distancing guidelines on site

Social distancing should be practiced whenever possible. Simply wearing a face covering DOES NOT mean you are compliant with social distancing guidelines. It is your responsibility to know all mitigation strategies before working or being around other people. This includes in the lunch rooms, smoke pits, and during STARRT card meetings.

Here are some ways to mitigate activities when you cannot properly social distance:

- If it is too loud to hear the person you are talking to, find a quiet place to talk and stay 6 feet apart.
- If someone is conducting an inspection, wait at a different location while the inspection is taking place. The inspector can come to you after the inspection is completed and tell you the results.
- If you cannot social distance during a meeting, including STARRT card meetings, find a different place to hold the meeting where social distancing is possible.
- If you are doing a job that requires you to be closer than six feet, wear a face covering. Make sure you have looked at ALL mitigation strategies before you start.
- If you cannot socially distance to do your task, make sure the work is documented on the STARRT card and is reviewed and covered with your superintendent before starting the task.

Remember, it is a requirement to maintain social distancing on site when possible. Make sure to find ways to maintain this during all activities on site.
