

COUNSELING RESOURCES for SCHOOL CLOSURE-WEEK 2

- Keep a routine. Go to bed and wake at a reasonable hour each day. Take a shower and get dressed for the day. Schedule time to be active and productive. Remember ABC Please skills from DBT and consider the Healthy Mind Platter when developing a schedule.
- Maintain contact with outside providers/therapists. Although in person appointments may not be happening at the moment, ask your provider if you may schedule time to speak by phone or other virtual options. It is important to continue to develop and practice coping strategies, especially at this time!
- Be mindful of media intake. Temporarily limit exposure to sources that increase anxiety, depression, loneliness, fear, and anger and stick to content that helps you feel hopeful, happy, calm, connected, inspired and uplifted!
- Make healthy choices. Fuel your body with nutritious food (meals, snacks and hydrate, hydrate, HYDRATE!). Schedule time to go for a walk or other exercise daily. Avoid nicotine, drugs and alcohol.
- Take Medication as Prescribed. Or consult with your prescriber if you have questions or would like to make changes.
- Do something to feel productive. If you're behind, chip away at some outstanding assignments. It will help you keep from getting bored, can serve as a distraction, and will reduce long term stress. If you have a question for a counselor or teacher, please reach out via email. Or tackle a project at home that may help you feel productive.
- Stay connected. Genuinely connected. Have real in person conversations with your family, phone/facetime conversations with friends and extended family, write letters/cards, play board games with your family, spend time with your animals. Reach out to friends and loved ones via facetime or other video platforms that feature more authentic 1-1 connection.
- Reach out to your supports!
