New Day For Newspaper

Yesterday, twenty-two students from Kindergarten to grade 8 gathered to kick-off St. Paul School's new and hopefully improved school paper. This week, we are just publishing a broadside (2 pages), but be sure to make certain you get your copy next week. There will be some new features and pictures by a variety of writers. This week, we offer just a taste of what is to be.

Eighth graders Abby Collins and Hannah Lloyd will serve as editors-in-chief. Other Editorial positions to be filled during the next few weeks.

Meet the Student Council!

This week we interviewed Trent Richards. He is the 2021-2022 Student Council president. This is his second year on Student Council, and he has been going to SPS since 2013!

What do you like most about SPS?

I like the small class sizes, so everyone can get individual attention.

What do you like most about the student council?

I like how we all work together well, and everyone has such good ideas.

If you could change one thing about SPS, what would it be?

A three-point line.

What's your favorite subject?

History.

What are your hobbies?

Basketball and baseball.

Do you have any pets?

Yes, two dogs named Rigley and Fenway.

National Punctuation Day

Today (September 24th), is National Punctuation Day! Periods, commas, semicolons, question marks, and exclamation marks are types of punctuation. Without punctuation, meaning would be lost, or up for interpretation. Today, across the country there will be punctuation events that test skills, educate, and poke fun at some of those embarrassing typos. So, make sure you're using punctuation correctly today!
