

"Safe as houses and (don't) break a leg"

Stage Combat

Nick Oddson is a certified Fight Directors Canada instructor and has performed or choreographed over 50 fights for shows over the last 16 years. Safety is his first priority, achieved through step by step repetition, encouragement and humour.

He is a long time director of Waterloo's Royal Medieval Faire and Theatre on the Edge, an improv group that runs Thursday nights and can be seen on Rogers TV. Nick has also been involved in indie films.

Nick is a software executive at Desire2Learn which he says happily funds his theatre and film activities. "I'm just a small town guy from Northern Ontario who fell in love with computers, fell in love with theatre, then fell in love at theatre".
