Legend says that there were two majestic continents that disappeared below the ocean in pre-history. Located in the Atlantic Ocean, Atlantis was the more technologically advanced; vivid descriptions of its cities and flying craft were recorded in Plato's dialogues. Lemuria, or Mu, was located in the Pacific Ocean and was believed to be populated by spiritual seekers, those who sought oneness with animals and nature. Japan, Hawaii, Easter Island and many other islands in the Pacific Ring of Fire are believed to be the remaining perimeter of Lemuria after the destruction of its central lands.

If the two continents are purely myth, why do so many cultures around the world trace their origin to refugees from both lands? Why is there evidence of civilizations which pre-date known cultures? And why are so many people today having dreams or memories of one or both island nations?

Find out how the rise and fall of Atlantis and Lemuria can bring messages to today's seekers.
