

NIS

A Learning Center for Children and their Families

Hello Families,

We wanted to reach out to all families about what to expect from NIS over the next couple of weeks. The United States Department of Education and NYS Education Department has encouraged providers to create a plan of distance learning. This may include the use of tele interventions, such as phone calls and online resources.

You will be hearing from your child's teacher and therapists this week to provide some guidance in working with your child towards their goals. Teacher/therapist contact will continue each week we are closed. In addition, our staff continues to contribute to the weekly NIS resource newsletter. As new guidance for NYS comes out, we will be looking into other possible options.

We understand how hard this time is for you and your children. Please know we are thinking of you and working hard to support home learning. Please understand you will be getting calls from blocked numbers. These will be from your child's teachers and therapists. If you haven't heard from them by Monday, please e-mail them via the links in the newsletters.

Thank you for your patience and understanding as we navigate during this difficult time

Take Care,
