Hear from TREE Center researchers Lisa Cacari-Stone, PhD and Gabe Sanchez, PhD about translating your research to policy; bring your ideas and questions about how your research could influence policies – organizational or governmental.

Objectives are to:

- Name how research is used in policy making
- Understand the role and value of building relationships to impact policy
- Using case examples, discuss how evidence is translated and disseminated for advancing health equity policy

Bring your ideas and questions about how your research could influence policies – organizational or governmental.
