

Direct Telehealth Technical Assistance Available

Is your practice struggling to get telehealth off the ground? Are your patients not embracing your telehealth strategy? Are you worried about getting adequately reimbursed for your telehealth visits? Telligen, in partnership with University of Colorado Practice Innovation Program, is providing practice support to enhance foundational practice skills to survive COVID-19, including telehealth. In order to be eligible to participate, your practice must be in Colorado, Illinois, Iowa or Oklahoma and must meet the following criteria:

-  1  Registered for Telligen QI Connect™ Join here!
-  2  Be a Primary Care Practice, Rural Health Clinic, FQHC*, IHS* Clinic or Tribe Clinic
-  3  Located in a MUA*, MUP*, HPSA* or rural region of the state
-  4  Have at least 20% of their patient population be Medicare Beneficiaries

Technical Assistance will Include:

- Weekly one-hour virtual technical sessions with 5-8 practices in each cohort, over six weeks
- Twice weekly one-hour “office hours” for practices to call in with questions around their implementation
- Limited email support to deal with practice questions
- Access to accompanying support resources, materials for practices and peer collaboration

Telligen QI Connect™ is Proud to Partner with:

Sign Up Here!

The direct telehealth technical assistance sessions begin May 12, 2020, please sign up by May 8, 2020.

Questions?

Contact Michael Boyson at: mboyson@telligen.com

800-386-6431 | www.TelligenQINQIO.com

*Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC), Indian Health Service (IHS)
Medically Underserved Area (MUA), Medically Underserved Population (MUP), Health Professional Shortage Area (HPSA)