Gathering Words

One: We light the first candle of Advent today to remind us to live expectantly,

Many: To keep kindled the warmth of hope within,

One: To create room for possibility, not privilege,

Many: To make a place of expectation and preparation,
wrapped in the glow of faith, hope, and humility;

One: We also light a candle today to remember World AIDS Day,

Many: To help us continue to light the way

One: And carry with us the hope of a world someday without HIV and AIDS;

Many: We remember those who have gone before, those who struggle now, and those within reach of prevention.

One: May we hold all of these in our hearts today,

ALL: As we pray that we may live by our hopes, and not by our fears, not by our words but by our deeds.

First Reading ~ Jeremiah 33:14-16

“The days are surely coming, says YHWH, when I will bestow upon the house of Israel and the house of Judah all the blessings I promised them. In those days and at that time I will raise up a righteous branch from the line of David, who will bring justice and integrity to the land. In those days Judah will be safe and Jerusalem will be secure. They will call the land, ‘YHWH is our Justice.’”

Second Reading ~ adapted from Cynthia Bourgeault in "Mystical Hope"

Must we be tossed incessantly between joy and sorrow, expectation and disappointment? Is it not possible to live from a place of greater equilibrium, to find a deeper and smoother current?

The good news is that this deeper current does exist, and you actually can find it in hope that flows from the source. The journey to the source of hope is ultimately a theological journey, one up and over the mountain to the sources of hope in the headwaters of the Christian Mystery. This journey to the wellsprings of hope is not something that will change your life in the short term. Rather, it is something that will change your innermost way of seeing. From there, inevitably, everything will be rearranged.

The journey to the wellsprings of hope is really a journey toward the center, toward the innermost ground of our being, where we meet and are met by God.

Sung Words of Institution:

"Let Us Be Bread"

By Thomas J. Porter

The Leader will sing the verses. Please join together on the refrain:

Let us be bread, blessed by our God, broken and shared, life for the world.

Let us be wine, love freely poured. Let us be one in our God.
