She served in many roles during her 33 year tenure including professional development leader, assistant principal, principal, instructional support leader, deputy chief of schools before, and finally, prior to retiring, chief of schools. She has provided educational leadership and instructional support to more than 70 school principals and their assistant principals on the south, far south and southeast sides of the city.

And, as a principal, she was one of two recipients in the state of Illinois to receive national recognition as a winner of the prestigious Milken Award for excellence in education. Further, Cheryl was a recipient of the Margaret T. Burroughs Legacy Award from the DuSable Museum of African History.

In the field of education she is known as a servant leader and believes that it is better to give than to receive. She makes it a practice to embody that motto on a daily basis, serving in her church and within Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Dr. Watkins founded Monarch Education Consultants, LLC to provide supports to districts, schools and school leaders around three specific buckets of work to increase academic achievement for students and to support the instructional capacity of teachers, Race and Equity, Emotional Intelligence and Leadership.

Dr. Watkins has two earned advance degrees from the University of Illinois at Chicago, including a Masters degree and a Ph.D. in special education. And, recently, she became a best-selling author when her book Releasing Her: Wrestling Peace from the Jaws of Alzheimer's, was released.
